CRUMPLED DEATH CAR

Two persons died Sunday when this late model car hit a power pole on outskirts of Lake Cowichan. Two other occupants were seriously injured. They were returning from Mesachie Lake after attending celebrations marking India's independence day. On-the-spot photo was taken by Bali Kudra of Victoria.

Russ Seek UN Order For Troop Withdrawals

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (CP)—Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko and 75 helpers prepared today for a drive to get the United Nations General Assembly's emergency session to demand withdrawal of U.S. troops from Lebanon and British troops from Jordan.

Gromyko was expected to speak early in the general debate, which starts Wednesday. He said on his arrival from Moscow Sunday that the Soviet government considers the question of the withdrawals "very serious" and his delegation "will do their best... to achieve positive results."

Asian members were reported seeking some means of inducing the Western powers to pull their troops out quickly so the assembly could concentrate on other Middle Eastern problems.

Diplomatic sources said Burma, Ceylon, India and Indonesia are seeking to bring the 28-country Asian-African group to a common policy on the withdrawal question. The group holds the balance of power in the 81-power assembly, where a two-thirds vote is needed for any major decisions.

PLAN UNDER FIRE

Asian delegates at the UN picked holes in the Middle East plan proposed by Secretary-General Dag Hammarskjöld Friday. It calls for (1) A pledge by Arab countries of mutual non-interference, (2) big-power agreement not to interfere in the Arab countries, (3) general co-operation for Middle East economic development and (4) UN protection for Jordan, Lebanon and the Israel-U.A.R. frontier.

NIKITA WRITES MAC

Summit 'Descent' Blamed on West

MOSCOW (CP)—Soviet Premier Khrushchev today blamed the United States and Britain for shifting discussion of the Middle East from a summit meeting to the UN General Assembly.

In a letter to Prime Minister Macmillan, Khrushchev denied that he and the Soviet Union backed down from a summit meeting within the Security Council.

The letter, released today, in effect charged the U.S. and Britain with trying to stage a loaded session of the UN that would justify their "aggressive action" in the Near and Middle East.

Macmillan, in a note to Khrushchev Aug. 7, said the Soviet premier agreed to a summit meeting within the framework of the Security Council but backed down.

Khrushchev's reply denies this. He said he hoped the emergency session of the General Assembly, which begins debate Wednesday, would "cope with the tasks before it" and thus "to a considerable extent clear the way toward calling a conference of leading statesmen of the West and East."

Britain to Go Ahead On Cyprus Plan --- Mac

ANKARA, Turkey (Reuters)—Prime Minister Macmillan has told the Greek and Turkish governments that Britain intends to go ahead with her seven-year plan for Cyprus.

The prime minister expressed the hope that his four days of private talks in Athens and Ankara would lead to the restoration of peace in the violence-ridden island colony.

"I am sure this is the hope of all men of good will," he told reporters.

It is understood Macmillan found some grounds for hoping Greece and Turkey will acquiesce in the British plan—perhaps with minor alterations.

However, Greece today was reported planning to take her claim to the island of Cyprus back to the UN Assembly after apparently fruitless talks with Mr. Macmillan.

It was apparent that all three nations were holding fast to their previous positions.

On his way back to London, the prime minister stopped off in Cyprus and lunched with British military chiefs. He decided on the visit at the last moment and put off his return to London until late tonight or Tuesday morning.

Macmillan gave the Greek and Turkish premiers details of the plan, and listened to their reactions. He did not ask for specific agreement from either government.

Macmillan, together with the governor of Cyprus, Sir Hugh Foot, spent 3½ hours Sunday with Turkish Premier Adnan Menderes and Foreign Minister Fatin Zorlu.

TIFFANYS LOOTED

Gem Thieves Strike Twice For $100,000

TORONTO (CP)—Diamond merchant Elias Friedman reported to police today he was robbed of $100,000 in diamonds after being bound and gagged by two men in his office on downtown Dundas Square.

Police said the robbery occurred just after Mr. Friedman opened his office after bringing the diamonds from a vault in the Imperial Bank of Canada.

NEW YORK (AP)—Taking advantage of a patrolman's transfer, burglars took jewelry valued at $163,300 Sunday from two display windows of Tiffany and Company, famed jewelry store on Fifth Avenue.

Police said the gems were snatched about 20 minutes after the policeman assigned to the Tiffany area was transferred to Idlewild Airport to form part of a heavy guard for the arrival of Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko.

Is Margaret Angered By Book About Peter?

LONDON (Reuters)—Princess Margaret has finally broken with Group Capt. Peter Townsend over a forthcoming book written by one of his friends, the Sunday newspaper The People reports.

The newspaper says in a front-page story that "the Princess has let it be known that any further approaches from him would be unwelcome."

It says the "cause of the final breach between them is a book that is to be published shortly telling the whole story of their love affair."

The People adds: "It has been written by a journalist named Norman Barrymaine, a close friend of Peter Townsend, and Princess Margaret naturally takes strong exception to the disclosures" that are promised.

5 KILLED, 22 HURT IN U.S. TRAIN CRASH

STERLINGTON, N.Y. (AP)—Two Erie Railroad passenger trains collided head-on today, killing five persons and injuring at least 22 others. The accident occurred when one train missed orders to wait for the other to get off its track.

Gray Will Not Go on Stand At Bribe Trial

Defence Rests Case; Adjourned Two Weeks

VANCOUVER (CP)—The defence rested its case today and the marathon Sommers bribery-conspiracy trial was adjourned until Aug. 25.

J. R. Nicholson, counsel for H. Wilson Gray, Pacific Coast Services Limited and Evergreen Lumber Sales, said that in view of the evidence given by three other accused, he felt it was not necessary to call other evidence on behalf of his clients.

This means that Wilson Gray, described by the Crown as a "kingpin" in the alleged bribery-conspiracy, will not take the stand to testify in his own defence.

The three other individuals accused, former lands and forests minister Robert Sommers, Charles D. Schultz and John Gray, have completed testimony in their own defence.

Murder Suspect Seen by RCMP Near Penticton

PENTICTON, B.C. (CP)—RCMP are positive they had a fleeting glimpse during the weekend of the man who has eluded police-led posses throughout the southern Okanagan for the last seven days.

The search for Donald Stevens, charged with wounding an RCMP corporal at a road-block set up following the slaying of a woman fruit picker, was narrowed Sunday to the heavily-wooded Green Mountain area 10 miles west of here.

Stevens was sighted by a three-man squad of RCMP on a winding dusty road between here and Keremeos, 20 miles to the southwest. But their quarry disappeared into the dense scrub timber that flanks the road.

Stevens was carrying a rifle over his shoulder, police said. He was previously thought to be armed with an automatic pistol.

CONSTABLE WOUNDED

Stevens is charged in a warrant with wounding Cpl. Ralph Brown of the RCMP at a road block thrown up after the slaying of Anita Budde, 28, a week ago Sunday in her fruit picker's shack at the nearby Kaleden orchard where she had been working.

Following the sighting, a farm house off the road was broken into. Aeneas Orland reported bacon, eggs and flour were stolen Saturday night from his home.

ROAD GUARDED

Three Separate Fatal Mishaps During Weekend

Three persons were killed Sunday in two up-Island car accidents.

Dead are: Jagatar Singh, about 20, of New Westminster, killed in a crash at Lake Cowichan. Munsha Singh Kangniwal, about 30, of Mesachie Lake, killed in the same accident. Robert McClelland, 39, South Wellington, who was hurled from his car to the bed of a creek 150 feet below the highway.

The tragedies brought to four the number of up-Island traffic deaths over the weekend. On Saturday, Rolane Gagne, 17, of Port Alberni was killed when the car in which she was riding skidded and overturned 2½ miles from her home.

Jagatar Singh was killed about 7.15 p.m. Sunday when a car he was in hit a guard rail and crashed into a power pole on the outskirts of Lake Cowichan, 17 miles west of Duncan.

Pronounced dead on arrival at King's Daughters' Hospital in Duncan was Munsha Singh Kangniwal who was in the same car. Police declined to name the driver.

Seriously injured in the crash was Laik Singh of New Westminster, owner of the car, and Kartar Singh Bhango, Mesachie Lake.

Both the Mesachie Lake men were employees of Hillcrest Lumber Co.

INDIA DAY FESTIVAL

The accident followed day-long celebrations of India's independence day held annually at the lake and attended by East Indians from the Island and mainland.

A similar accident occurred Aug. 14, 1955, when Victoria businessman Himat Singh Gill, 32, was killed when a car in which he was riding hit a stump by the road while he was en route to celebrations at the lake.

Robert McClelland of South Wellington was hurled from his light truck early Sunday when the vehicle struck a guard rail at Boulder Creek on Nanaimo River Road six miles south of Nanaimo.

He was thrown out of the car and fell 150 feet to the rocks below. The body was found about 1 a.m. The car was going south at the time.

The victim was married and had two children.

Rolane Gagne was a passenger in a car owned by Ferdinand Whittmeir, another occupant.

Miss Gagne was returning home after taking her mother to Nanaimo, where she caught the ferry to Vancouver. The car overturned on the highway 2½ miles from Alberni. An inquest opened Saturday and was adjourned until 7.30 p.m. Aug. 15.

Funeral will be held in Notre Dame Church, Alberni, Tuesday at 10 a.m., with Rev. Wilfred Brazeau officiating. Burial will be in the Roman Catholic cemetery. Survivors include her parents and sister and a brother, Marcel.

John Fraser Loses

OTTAWA (CP)—John Fraser of Victoria was defeated in the second round of the Canadian open junior tennis championships today by J. Baker of Haiti, 6-3, 6-0.

SPECTACULAR CRASH marred big Gold Cup hydroplane race at Seattle Sunday when last year's winner, Miss Thriftway, spun out of control and smashed into a Coast Guard picket craft. Driver Bill Muncy was thrown from the craft and can be seen bobbing in the water at the right hand side of the wake. (AP Wirephoto). (See Story Page 6).

HALIFAX (CP)—Princess Margaret's departure from Canada tonight has been set back an hour and 45 minutes to allow her to make a nationwide television and radio broadcast before she attends a farewell state dinner here.

Originally the Princess was to board a British Overseas Airways plane at Shearwater Airport at 6 p.m. PDT. The new departure time is 7.45 p.m. PDT.

First plans called for her to broadcast to the nation after the dinner. Tour officials said she preferred to make the broadcast before dinner so she could relax during the meal.

The broadcast is timed for 4.30 p.m. PDT, and is expected to run about eight or nine minutes.

Margaret combined with a

Halifax Natal Day celebration arts festival today to draw the largest crowds this city has seen since VE Day.

Police estimated between 50,000 and 60,000 persons crowded the Halifax common and adjacent streets to see the Princess at the Natal Day parade.

Police estimate between 20,000 and 30,000 crowded the slopes

People and Things

NICE, France — Sir Winston Churchill is living it up on his Riviera vacation. Sunday he boarded the Christina, a yacht owned by millionaire Aristotele Onassis, in Monaco harbor and lunched with film star Greta Garbo. Onassis and his wife also invited Churchill's Riviera host, Lord Beaverbrook.

... PRINCESS

Continued from Page 1 of Citadel Hill Sunday night to see the Princess make a 15-minute call at an outdoor concert by an arts festival massed choir.

When she drove off the crowd swarmed down the hill and surrounded the car. One policeman said the crowd was so big "a regiment couldn't have stopped them."

They stopped the royal car for a full minute before police could clear a passage. Children clung to the sides and shouted "Hi" to the princess. She smiled through it all and appeared unperturbed.

The princess stepped down from the royal special train for the last time Sunday after a cross-country tour that took her from Goose Bay, Labrador, to Victoria, and back east to Halifax.

Once or twice she balked at what local officials arranged and demanded something more interesting. She seemed happiest when she was able to break away from the stuffy formality to see and talk to ordinary people at work or play.

She broke the routine several times this weekend in the Maritimes.

TALKED TO FISHERMEN

In Digby, N.S., she left her motorcade on the waterfront and walked the length of a pier to talk with grizzled scallop fishermen and see their boats.

She told Mayor Gordon Turnbull she would like to go aboard one of the boats but decided the steep ramp leading down to it wasn't made for high-heeled shoes.

That was the only way to get to the boats, the mayor told her. The princess smiled and said:

"I could sit down and slide down the ramp. Or I could climb down the stairway."

She talked with the grand old man of the fleet, Capt. Rollie Wormell, 82. He slyly reached in his pocket, pulled out a handkerchief, polished two rare blue-colored scallop shells and gave them to her. "They're royal blue," he said.

BALKS AT GUARD

The Princess balked at Camp Gagetown, N.B., when army brass called for her to inspect still another guard of honor, a chore she performed dutifully dozens of times across Canada. "Oh, not another guard of honor," she is reported to have said. "Isn't there something more exciting?"

LONDON (Reuters) — The Queen Mother and members of the government will welcome Princess Margaret home to London Tuesday after her tour of Canada.

Up-Island Homes Menaced by Fire

SHAWNIGAN LAKE — A 40-acre bush fire which for a time threatened nearby homes here Saturday was brought under control after a seven-hour battle by the Shawnigan Lake Volunteer Fire Department and firefighters of the forestry department.

The blaze ate its way to within a quarter mile of residences on the east side of the lake.

The fire was noticed at about 3.30 p.m. and had burned over an acre, mostly E & N Railway property, by then. An E & N tank car assisted in fighting the blaze.

Despite the extremely dry weather, it was the first major fire outbreak in the Shawnigan Lake area this season.

Some delay was experienced by firefighters due to the long distance fire lines had to be laid, about a quarter mile from

MRS. EDWARD BRAND

TALKS TODAY ON LUMBERING WAGE DISPUTE

Talks were scheduled to continue in Vancouver today in a wage dispute between coast lumber operators and officials of the 28,000-member International Woodworkers of America.

Royal commissioner Gordon Sloan said Friday exploratory talks had already taken place, but declined further comment.

Mr. Sloan, forestry adviser to the provincial government was appointed as a one-man royal commission to settle the dispute after the forest workers voted June 27 to strike.

Why I Support Community Chest

TODAY: MRS. EDWARD BRAND, RESTAURATEUR.

"Well put it this way, I am behind the Chest because it does things for people. Good things, permanent things that make big important differences in their lives. Things that count."

"The Chest is worthwhile. Everything it does means that somebody is going to benefit. It would be wrong not to support an organization like that, wouldn't it? But there are other reasons I believe in the Chest."

"As a businesswoman, I like the way the Chest is efficient. It cuts corners. It saves time. It wraps up all the charities in one."

"Anyone who has done any canvassing—and I have—will know how much time he or she must spend going to houses and collecting from all kinds of people. It's a big job for just one charity, but when you multiply the time by 20, which is the number of organizations in this year's Chest, it adds up to days and weeks that could have been spent in less frustrating ways."

"Also, the Chest is worth supporting because it does such a good job for the individual agencies in it."

"To start with, each participating charity knows at the outset of the campaign how much it will receive or can expect to receive—and this knowledge alone helps their budgets."

"But most of all, I support the Community Chest because it is big enough to do a lot of real good. It spreads its tentacles so wide, you see."

(A Victoria restaurateur for five years, Scotland-born former Calgarian Mrs. Brand knows a lot about the business of giving.)

She is past president of the Canadian National Institute for the blind in Victoria. "I've been with them for 20 years," and has long been a spark in the Cancer Society.

Nasser 'Misled by Reds'

AMMAN, Jordan (AP) — King Hussein Sunday night accused President Nasser of serving international communism as its "first agent in the Arab world."

In a broadcast, Jordan's monarch told his people:

"Communism has made him (Nasser) a servant for its causes, has misled him and made him fill the earth with corruption and plots everywhere."

"It was the strongest attack that Hussein, who last month called in British troops to help protect his country's independence and internal stability, has ever made on the president of the United Arab Republic."

Hussein's broadcast was made on the eve of the sixth anniversary of his proclamation as king of Jordan.

BEIRUT (CP) — Pro-government irregulars fought a three-hour battle with rebels Sunday in Alta village, near the Syrian frontier, it was reported today. Sources connected with the Syrian Social National Party said armed members of the party killed or wounded many rebels and lost one dead and two wounded on their own side.

BAGHDAD, Iraq (Reuters) — Economics Minister Ibrahim Kubba said Saturday the new government has "no intention whatever" of nationalizing Iraq's oil industry.

"But we hope to discuss the entire question of our agreements with the Iraqi Petroleum Company soon, including adjustments of the profit-sharing basis and disputes outstanding under the old regime," he said in an interview.

BEIRUT — The United States began distributing $5,000,000 worth of free wheat to Lebanon today.

The Lebanese minister of national economy, Khazen el Khalil, thanked the American people for the wheat, but expressed the hope that aid will not be limited to this program. An unusually dry spring and three months of civil disorders have brought a wheat shortage.

CAIRO (AP) — The Egyptian newspapers Sunday flayed Dag Hammarskjöld's suggestions for Middle East peace and stability. They said the UN chief completely ignored the real troubles besetting the Arab world.

BEIRUT (Reuters) — Beirut storekeepers and nightclub owners were bearing up bravely today under the million-dollar "burden" of American "occupation."

Intermunicipal Group to Study BCE Bus Set-Up

Full scale study of two complications in the B.C. Electric application for bus fare increases was scheduled for today by the Greater Victoria intermunicipal committee.

Committee members, plus any members of the four councils who wished to attend, were to discuss:

1. Possible sale of the entire BCE transit operation to two Vancouver men backed by British interests.

2. A Public Utilities Commission suggestion that the municipalities subsidize bus operations by reducing or eliminating the 3 per cent charge on bus revenue to offset road maintenance costs on bus routes.

BCE officials W. C. Mearns, vice-president in charge of V.I. operations, E. A. M. Patterson, company solicitor, H. R. Halls, transit manager, and Mark Trueman, operations manager, were to attend the meeting to bring the civic leaders up to date on an announcement last week that the Vancouver and Victoria bus systems might be sold.

The prospective purchasers are T. J. Manning, 53-year-old retired United States Army Air Force brigadier-general and transportation company tycoon now living in Vancouver, and Ivor W. Neil, retired manager of the BCE transit system.

Price tag has been suggested at around $20,000,000, to be financed by an unnamed British company. BCE bus system assets, estimated at $17,690,000 recently, are under study by auditors. Gen. Manning, one-time president of a Los Angeles transit company, said:

"We should get down to moneys matters (in negotiations) in a day or two," he said in Vancouver.

Both Gen. Manning and BCE officials said a decision, one way or the other, should be reached within two weeks.

Company Registered, 'Assets Enough'

A company, B.C. Transit Ltd., already has been registered and assets "will be enough to cover the costs of purchasing and operating the business," Gen. Manning said.

BCE has applied for fare increases: boosting fares from 10 to 13 cents cash or four tickets for 50 cents in Victoria and from 13 to 15 cents in Vancouver. The application will be heard Sept. 2 in Vancouver and Sept. 8 in Victoria by the PUC.

Gen. Manning said his company would not seek further increases if it takes over the operation "provided the PUC grants B.C. Electric's present application."

Although the system has been operating at a loss, he said he had no doubt it could be run at a profit without additional fare boosts.

Greater Victoria municipalities could block the transfer by withdrawing franchises granted BCE in 1947.

But Mayor Percy Scurrugh said he did not expect any objection to the deal from city council "if the new group could provide equal or better service."

Gen. Manning, born in Omaha, Neb., who started in the transportation business there with one bus, has bought and sold several transportation companies on the west coast.

"But I intend to hang on to this one," he said. "I will be president of the company and Mr. Neil will be vice-president."

From 1925 until 1931 he was manager of the Union Pacific Stages operated by the Union Pacific Railroad Co. A year later he became head of Manning Transportation Co. in Oakland, Calif.

He relinquished control in 1943 to become vice-president of Pacific City Lines, of Oakland 1, rising to president the following year.

Gen. Manning was president of Los Angeles Transit Lines, Inc. from 1944 to 1948, when he moved to Chicago as vice-president of National City Lines, Inc. He acquired control of Manning Tank Lines, Inc. and Lang Transportation Co. of Los Angeles, in 1949, selling out later.

Last year he was president of Gray Lines Tours, Inc. of Seattle, president of Gray Line Avic U-Drive, Inc., and president of Tacoma Suburban Lines, Inc.

He served in the USAAF during the Second World War, attaining the rank of brigadier-general.

He moved to Vancouver last December and currently is a director of Transport Holdings, Ltd., and Lees Transport, Ltd., in that city.

'Vision' Challenged By Starved Eskimos

(From Times News Services)

OTTAWA — The government, moved by reports of starvation and death in Canada's north, has initiated action to organize into settlements groups of nomad Eskimos whose way of life has been broken by the disappearance of caribou.

Northern Affairs Minister Alvin Hamilton told the Commons of government plans Saturday after Mervyn Hardie (L—MacKenzie River) recounted the tragedy of 14 Eskimos in the Northwest Territories who died of starvation and exposure last winter.

They had been forced near the end to eat their dogs and even their own caribou-hide clothing in vain efforts to survive.

The tragedy, said Mr. Hardie, was a sad reflection on the Progressive Conservatives' promise of a "great vision" of human and material northern development.

Two years ago he had warned that the herds of caribou on which the wandering Eskimos depended for food were fast disappearing. Yet little had been done.

"Move these Eskimos to an area where they can live," he said. "Do something; do something about that vision."

'Hearts Moved'

Mr. Hamilton, speaking during discussion of his department's estimates, said Mr. Hardie's "harrowing" story "moved our hearts." There could be no assurance that starvation among these northern natives would not recur, but the government was taking action.

Some Eskimo family groups, particularly those in the Garry Lake area west of Hudson Bay where starvation was reported, were being moved into settlements where the government could look after them.

Northern patrols by the RCMP would be co-ordinated with those by northern affairs officers to provide better Eskimo supervision. But where possible, Eskimos would still be encouraged to hunt, to maintain their traditional independence.

The northern affairs debate was initiated toward the end of a day which saw Commons attendance dwindle at some points to 36 members in the 265-seat chamber. The one roll-call vote rallied 91 members.

Marathon Sitings

Today, the House begins marathon sittings with the government driving to terminate the session by Aug. 23. Meeting three times daily, the House will step up its weekly sittings to 41 hours from 33.

The Commons defeated 71-20 a CCF amendment aimed at blocking money allocated for payment of parliamentary assistants. There are no parliamentary assistants at present.

The amendment was moved by Erhart Regier (CCF, Burnaby-Coquitlam) and supported by the Liberals.

Works Minister Green called it a "leg-pulling" amendment but speaker after speaker on the opposition side protested what J. W. Pickersgill (Liberal, Bonaville-Twillington) called an effort to "deceive" Parliament.

Discussion arose in consideration of an item of $56,000 in the speaker's estimates covering payment of parliamentary assistants in the 1958-59 fiscal year. Mr. Regier noted that nearly half the year is gone already, and no parliamentary assistants have been appointed.

Thursday, Mr. Diefenbaker was asked when the assistants

RUSS A-BOMBS GO TO CHINA

LONDON (AP) — The Sunday Times reports in a dispatch from Tokyo that Russia has supplied Communist China with a stockpile of atomic bombs.

The newspaper says its information came from Japanese and American intelligence authorities.

PEIPING (Reuters) — Communist China could mobilize an army of 100,000,000 men in the three-day secret talks between Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev and Mao Tse-tung, China's head of state.

"In the event of war we can put 50,000,000 men under arms at once. Within a brief period our military strength would be 100,000,000," he said.

Electrical Rates

THE B.C. ELECTRIC, AFFRONTED by an editorial in this newspaper, has come to the support of the Public Utilities Commission.

In a letter to The Times published here a few days ago the B.C. Electric says that we have been unfair to the Public Utilities Commission and its recent decision to increase electrical rates sharply.

The main point made by the B.C. Electric is that the P.U.C. increased rates only after it had made the most complete investigation. As it says, the auditors of the P.U.C. virtually live in the B.C. Electric offices, continually watching its revenues and expenditures. All the facts are known to these experts. Nothing is hidden.

Hence, says the B.C. Electric, we were wrong in suggesting that the investigation preceding the rate increase was inadequate and too brief. But the B.C. Electric and our editorial were talking about two different things.

Admittedly, in discussing a highly complex matter in abbreviated form we did not make our point clear. We seemed to suggest that the P.U.C. had not fully studied the books of the B.C. Electric. This was not our intention. What we had in mind, as stated clearly in earlier editorials was something else entirely.

No one can doubt the figures in the B.C. Electric ledgers. No one can doubt that the last penny of expenditure is known to the P.U.C. No one can deny (apart from a point to be mentioned later) that on the basis of its present costs the B.C. Electric needs and deserves higher rates. The question we have raised is whether those costs are unavoidable.

Is the B.C. Electric a thoroughly effective operation? Does its vast empire contain no waste like the undoubted waste of governments? Are all its investments sound, its works built at the lowest possible cost, its expenses, new buildings, stock options for officers, all necessary, its management staff no larger or more costly than it should be? Above all—for this is the largest operating expense—has the B.C. Electric resisted unreasonable wage demands when, for example, it recently granted to its electricians one of the highest wage increases awarded to any labor union in the nation this year?

We have raised these questions but we have not tried to answer them, for we do not have and cannot possibly secure the relevant information. And we do not believe that the P.U.C. has this information or, at all events, has not published it.

Perhaps it is not the business of the P.U.C. under the existing law to consider these things in detail. It has no control, for example, over wage scales or decisions on capital investments. Neither it nor the B.C. Electric is responsible for the gross mismanagement of our hydro electric resources by the Federal and Provincial Governments which so far has prevented their most efficient use or indeed any use at all on our great power rivers.

Macmillan's Triumph

AN EXTRAORDINARY AND moving incident occurred the other day in the British House of Commons.

After a brilliant speech on the Middle East crisis Prime Minister Macmillan started to walk out of the chamber. To his amazement, his supporters leaped to their feet with a wild cheer of approval. Mr. Macmillan, a man not given to public emotion, burst into tears.

Next day, when he discussed his foreign policies in a secret caucus of the Conservative Party members the ovation accorded him, says the London press, sounded in the corridors of Westminster like the collapse of a stone wall.

All the experienced British correspondents agree that Mr. Macmillan has lately achieved a political triumph and vastly strengthened himself in the country, after months of bitter disappointment.

It cannot be explained merely by the success of the Government's economic policies at home, notable as it has been. The true stature of the Government's leader was first disclosed by his skilled management of the Middle East crisis.

While many Western statesmen were losing their heads, Mr. Macmillan kept his. He alone was able to meet and parry the shrewd thrusts

One fact, however, we do know—electrical rates in the B.C. Electric area are generally higher than in most comparable parts of Canada, higher than in the American area a few miles away.

The relevant figures were compiled by the Times and published here. Questioned before the P.U.C. the B.C. Electric did not deny them but argued only that its rates were relatively high because costs of capital investment and operation were relatively high. That our costs in British Columbia are high in electricity and many other things cannot be questioned. The whole question raised here is whether they are higher than they need to be. Can the P.U.C. reassure us on this point? If it can, does this mean then that British Columbia, which needs the cheapest possible power for its industrial development, must always pay higher rates than those of many areas in direct or indirect competition with us?

There is another question highly technical but highly important to the consumer of electricity.

In a recent historic decision the Government of Canada sitting as a court of final appeal altered the rate-making methods of the Board of Transport Commissioners in a vital respect. The Board had allowed the railways sufficient freight rates to permit the accumulation of huge sums which might be needed, or might not, to pay corporation taxes at some uncertain future date. The Government decided that these reserves in the established amount were not needed against a cost that might never arise. Hence part of the freight rate increases ordered by the Board was cancelled.

The P.U.C., however, refused to follow the policy of the national Government—a policy also applied in the Bell Telephone case last April—and ruled that the B.C. Electric must continue to accumulate reserves against possible future taxes. For this decision the B.C. Electric is not responsible. If it must accumulate reserves it must have rates that will provide them and this provision is part of the consumer-cost in rates.

It is difficult for the layman to understand why the basic method of rate making should be different in Ottawa and Victoria. Throughout the nation it was taken for granted that local public utilities commissions would accept the Federal policy henceforth in fixing local rates. The P.U.C. here has decided otherwise for reasons which seem good to it. All the consumer of this area knows is that he has been paying relatively higher rates and that they are to be still higher, in a province where some of the world's largest streams are running out to sea.

An immediate argument on power rates though important in itself cannot disguise the larger fact which is that British Columbia entirely lacks an overall integrated power policy. The B.C. Electric is not to blame for that and is itself the victim of the policy vacuum created by the Federal and Provincial Governments. The other victim is the user of electricity.

of that skilled diplomatic swordsman, Mr. Khrushchev.

When the Russian dictator suddenly appeared as the protector of the Arab world and proposed a summit conference, the American Government hesitated, wrangled and wrote a cranky note, a kind of Philadelphia lawyer's brief, to Mr. Khrushchev, filled with querulous abuse. Mr. Macmillan, however, answered calmly that if Mr. Khrushchev wanted an immediate conference he could have it—anywhere and at any time.

That obviously rocked Mr. Khrushchev back on his heels. And as Mr. Macmillan doubtless intended, it forced the United States Government reluctantly toward the summit.

The British Prime Minister, in fact, seized the initiative as the one clear voice of the West, silenced the Labor Opposition and instantly united the whole British nation.

Inheriting the unfortunate legacy of his predecessor and a deeply divided nation, Mr. Macmillan has given Britain a sudden access of strength and confidence. He may also have assured the re-election of his Government, but that will be incidental. The important thing is that, in a time of grave danger, Britain has a leader fully trusted at home and abroad.

SNAPSHOT OF EISENHOWER

By JOSEPH ALSOP

Luck Runs Out

PRESS conferences in Washington, including Presidential press conferences, commonly produce headlines without solid news under them. News that matters, facts that count, generally have to be dug for or fought for; and for these reasons this reporter almost never goes to press conferences.

The President's last press conference—the first in over a month—was no exception to the foregoing rule. But I went all the same, mainly because I had not seen one of these performances in some years. The impressions left by the experience were sad and negative, but perhaps they are worth recording all the same.

Beginning, then, at the beginning, any one whose private Eisenhower-image is the vigorously striding, easily smiling, richly self-confident Eisenhower of the past is bound to be a little shocked by the Eisenhower of today. I had seen him recently only at the NATO meeting in Paris, where he so bravely played his part after his stroke. I had been told that he was altogether different now from what he was then, when one wanted to cheer his every sentence as a courageous act of will.

Old and Tired

Certainly he is different. He seems an altogether well man, now. But he also seems what he never used to seem—an old man who is a little tired. The extraordinary mobility of that extraordinary face has been partly lost. The smile is more mechanical. The eyes are less vividly blue. And especially when you see the face in profile, you are suddenly struck by the way all the lines go down.

Since the President is nearing 68 and holds the most taxing job in the world, this change in his appearance would not be very surprising, even if he had not suffered the severe illnesses from which he has recovered so well. But there is another thing that strikes you, too—something more intangible, less easy to pin down, but perhaps more important than the inevitable signs of age. You are struck by the diminution of the curious, almost magical power that Eisenhower once had.

Touch of Glory

This strange Eisenhower power, it has always seemed to me, was best summed up by a trifling experience of my own. It happened just after he had been named NATO Supreme Commander. I had an errand in the Pentagon and I was walking along the corridor when the General in his glory burst out of the Secretary of Defence's office, at the head of a hurrying retinue of aides and escort officers. We were friends in those days. I congratulated him on his post, and he all but pinned me to the corridor wall, and gave me a five-minute answering lecture while the aides and escort officers tapped impatient feet.

The theme of the lecture was simply America's role in the free world, and his own deep satisfaction, to have been asked to serve as a principal embodiment of America's leadership of the cause of freedom. The syntax, as usual, was tangled. What he said was platitudinous enough, although the sentiments were virtuous. But for a moment he made those copybook-platitudes sound like great truths, eternal and profound, worthy to be inscribed in letters of fire on the arch of heaven itself. When he set off again on his tour of the Pentagon I must confess I was left with a rather chokey feeling.

Platitudes, No Fire

I kept thinking of that long-past experience at this press conference. The President had plainly been well-briefed. Jim Hagerty must have been pleased. Even the question about Sherman Adams and the White House secretaries who took Goldfinch's cheques evoked no more than a short, bright flush of anger. The questions that could be answered factually were as aptly answered as ever. The essential goodness of the man's intentions was just as apparent as ever. The platitudes of today were not really different from the platitudes of the past. On a bitter question of school integration in the South, for example:

"I keep preaching that there must be some wisdom, some sense of civic duty in accordance with the principles which have been laid out for a citizen of this country."

But now—unhappily—the platitudes did not sound as though they ought to be inscribed in letters of fire. They did not sound, either, like prefaces to fruitful, positive action. They sounded, rather, like the words a man speaks about great and painful problems which he is not sure how to tackle.

At the end of the conference, the President admitted that the problems were pressing in upon him much more heavily nowadays than they ever did in the past—"I think there are more of them," he said, "and I don't know whether it is just because I notice them more, or because there actually are more." But of course it is true there are many more problems now. For this deeply good man has been wonderfully lucky all his life; but now, his luck has turned; and so, alas, has the luck of the United States.

HARD TASKMASTER

Though society may owe you a living, art certainly does not. Art owes no one a living. With each picture, each book, and for actors and actresses with each performance, a battle takes place, and the outcome is uncertain. There is no certainty that anything will succeed.

"I'LL JUST PUT THESE ON . . . IN CASE ANY MAN LOOKS FOR FINGERPRINTS!"

FROM WASHINGTON By WALTER LIPPMANN

Now the General Assembly

HAVING disagreed on how they might meet face to face in a closed meeting, Mr. Eisenhower and Mr. Khrushchev find themselves agreeing that there should be a spectacular meeting of the General Assembly where everybody will confront everybody in a public meeting. The previous proposals for a summit meeting—Khrushchev's, de Gaulle's, Macmillan's and Eisenhower's—had one thing in common. This was the idea that there should be some opportunity for private discussion and perhaps negotiation, even though there was to be a great deal of public propaganda.

But now we have to have a gigantic spectacle which is entirely propaganda, and we have to pretend we like it. The only visible advantage is that the President is under no compulsion to attend the meeting and that Mr. Khrushchev may decide not to attend. The summit conference which we have never wanted has been for the moment avoided, and we have accepted instead a rough and tumble oratorical bout.

Danger of Public Trial

Our problem is to prevent this session of the General Assembly from being a public trial of the British and American military intervention in Lebanon and Jordan. This is what Mr. Khrushchev says he wants and, according to Mr. Dulles' recent press conference, the case for the defence which we shall present has been decided upon and is being worked out. The official American position seems to be that, having been widely criticized even in friendly countries, we welcome the chance to explain and to vindicate publicly our actions in the Middle East.

This is an optimistic view. Possibly, it may turn out that Mr. Lodge and Mr. Dulles can win a verdict in the General Assembly. But it will not be prudent to rely too much on the logic of our case and on the eloquence and magnetism of Secretary Dulles, or even of President Eisenhower. In the General Assembly we do not have a working majority in our favor. We do not have the two-thirds necessary on any important issue even if we can win the support of all the American republics and of all of Western Europe and of the old commonwealth states, Australia, New Zealand and Canada, and of our client states in Asia.

As Our Readers See It

CCF and Violence

No 'Straight-Ahead?'

At some street intersections in Victoria there are signs on the pavement saying "Left Turn Only" or "Right Turn Only" when reason would indicate that what the traffic department is trying to say is "No Right Turn" or "No Left Turn," as the case may be. There are no doubt a number of your readers who would appreciate having this clarified for them.

While writing to you, may I offer my commendations to the municipal engineer of Oak Bay, assuming that he is responsible for the abandonment of horse-and-buggy kerbs on the streets of that municipality. The old type were no doubt effective a couple of generations ago in discouraging cart-horses from straying onto the sidewalks but in the meantime they have probably ruined more tires than all the stones in Cobble Hill.

Send It to London

We, the undersigned, recommend that as a follow-up to B.C.'s gift of the Centennial Totem to the Royal Family, that we send this play, "The World of the Wonderful Dark," to London, and other great capitals of the world.

We feel we have something to give them that is entirely original, and combines all the elements of the theatre.

Seldom have we had the privilege of seeing the combination of effective writing, brilliant direction, authentic background, subtlety of color, perfection of make-up, that has seldom been equalled on any stage, and movement and grouping that would be the envy of any choreographer, and tempo that holds the audience from the first drum beat to the final fade-out.

It is regrettable that more citizens of Victoria have not had the opportunity of seeing what we feel is the finest drama ever presented on the stage of the Royal Theatre.

We predict that this will be a riot on the London Stage.

Retreat From Mons

In your issue of Aug. 6 you published an interesting article referring to the Queens quarterly in which Robert England writes on "The enigma of Sir Arthur Currie."

Without wishing to detract in any way from the magnificent service rendered by the Canadian forces in the First World War, I was somewhat surprised to read, and I quote: "There was no Canadian retreat at Mons, no defeats, no Gallipoli where weak generals brought disaster to brave men, to grow into glorious myth."

Now as one of the few survivors who took part in the retreat from Mons, and who has made a close study of the Gallipoli campaign, I consider that such remarks are not only mischievous, but an insinuating libel on the efficiency

The General Assembly, as it is now composed, is a very unfavorable forum in which to justify intervention by British and American forces in two Asian countries.

So it is important that in preparing for the Assembly, the diplomats rather than the litigators and the arguers should take the leading part. One place to begin is to stop building up the size and power of our military forces in Lebanon and instead to begin reducing them. The newly-elected President of Lebanon is going to ask us to leave, and the sensible thing to do is to begin leaving before we are asked. We do not need 15,000 troops to protect Mr. Chamoun for the few weeks he has a legal right to remain in office. Moreover, it would be a good idea to use our diplomatic influence in Beirut to persuade Mr. Chamoun to leave the country now and to take a holiday abroad. Then, we could order the withdrawal of all our troops before the General Assembly meets.

Difficult Extrication

The problem of extricating the British from Jordan is much more difficult. But there is not much doubt that a way must be found to extricate them. For the 2,000 paratroopers in Amman may be enough to protect the king from assassination, but they will never be able to make of Jordan a viable and independent kingdom. Sooner or later, but not much later, the paratroopers and the king will have to leave, and Jordan, as a separate and sovereign state, will disappear.

The great question is whether Jordan is to be transformed into some kind of neutralized territory under the United Nations, or whether it is to be broken up violently at the risk of a very probable war between the united Arabs and Israel.

This is a question which ought to be discussed privately and with great seriousness at a summit meeting. Mr. Khrushchev is making propaganda when he talks about military plots against Iraq as constituting the danger of war. But here in Jordan, though nobody wants it, there does exist a very real danger of war.

London and Washington will fail lamentably to do their duty if they are unable to go into the General Assembly with a constructive plan for Jordan, as well as with tangible evidence of our withdrawal from Lebanon.

and conduct of the Imperial forces engaged in those historic battles of the great war.

The original British Expeditionary Force, although outnumbered, was the most efficient and best trained army in the field, and as for Gallipoli, the failure there was due not to weak generals, but to faulty conception in the planning of the campaign in the first instance.

Does the writer really imply that had the Canadians been at Mons there would have been no retreat? If so, it was lucky for them that they were not there, and lucky for us all in view of the probable result of their annihilation or capture.

Canned Music

Ashley Montague, famous anthropologist and author of the recently published "Cultural Man" says "... Another mark of the cultured man is that he is profoundly interested in bringing the benefits of culture to all his fellow men ..."

The Beacon Hill Park administrators doubtless feel that the dissemination of recorded popular symphonies is a contribution to the culture of Victoria, as well as a greater drawing card to tourists.

But is it not true, that to benefit man music played publicly must be alive? Is not canned music played publicly an intellectual insult and aesthetic gall? Electrically amplified music is only the gross imitation of music. At a distance of a city block or two the electrically amplified music assumes the sharpness of a needle that painfully pierces the mind. The scientists say that such sounds are detrimental to the human nervous system.

I regret that Victoria chooses to spend its money for recreation and culture so carelessly. The $25,000 spent upon artificial illumination of the park could far better have been allotted to occasional symphonic concert played by Victoria musicians.

One of the primary tests of a cultured city is whether or not the people in power are keeping their artists alive. Another test is whether the people respect quiet, the peace in which the active mind may reflect and create.

At present the canned music program broadcast daily from 12 until 2 p.m. in Beacon Hill Park has a willing audience of five or six people in the park while the residents on Douglas Street who are not deaf, either wear cotton wool in their ears or have taken the first boat out of town. How can Victoria expect to hold residents of "activity of thought" in a city controlled by authority aesthetically uneducated.

Summer School

ABOUT a month ago, I think, there was a news item in the paper about summer school classes in English 20, 21, 30 and 31. They were being given so that students might complete their credits in these courses by September.

Recently I talked to a mother whose son attended these classes. So, just for the record, I'll pass on what I learned.

"The job was really good for him," she said. "He'd been slopping along at school. You know the way boys sometimes get at that age? This business of summer school really shook him up."

"From July 7 to Aug. 1, he had to be at Oak Bay Junior High right on time. Attendance had to be 100 per cent with only illness being accepted as an excuse for absence. He had one and a quarter hours of English language, and then another one and a quarter hours of literature. On top of that he had to do four hours of homework."

I laughed rather callously. "That must have hurt," I said.

"It did," said his mother. "He had to give up the job he'd got for the summer. And that was pretty painful because he'd counted on the money he was going to earn."

"Well, I heard of one student who missed his holiday on the mainland," I said. "In another household, I believe, the whole family holiday schedule was upset."

"It serves them right," said my friend. "I can't help thinking that if the students know this sort of thing is happening, they'll apply themselves that much harder in school."

"What was the fee for the courses?" I asked.

"Ten dollars for language and $10 for literature, or $15 if you took them both as Bob had to."

"Did you pay the fees?" I asked.

"Well, we did after some discussion. The financial loss of the holiday job seemed punishment enough."

"Did Bob get through?"

"Yes he did. He didn't skimp on any of the homework. I've seldom seen him work like that. The classes were smaller, of course. And he had two or three paragraphs of compositions to do each week."

Well, perhaps this episode is hardly worth a column. But it seems to me important to show the effect that stiffer discipline had in one particular household.

My guess is that students who were hauled back to school for summer classes in English 20 or 21 will work hard enough to see that they don't have to go through the same performance with English 30 or 31. My guess, too, is that many of the students who went to the special classes were not stupid so much as lazy and a bit too casual.

LONDON LETTER

The Key to Sophia

By WALLACE REYBURN

LONDON—Short takes
Loud praise for a new British war film that has an unusual plot, to say the least. It's called The Key, directed by Sir Carol Reed, and starring Trevor Howard and William Holden, and their exploits as tugmen going out into the Atlantic to rescue damaged convoy ships, makes movie material that is hailed as on a par with River Kwai. The unusual twist: There's a key that goes the rounds of the tugboat skippers. When each is killed in action it is taken over by another. It's the key to the boudoir (a garret flat) of the film star, Sophia Loren, who devotes her life to being the tugmen's solace ashore.

Here we go again on a popular old mystery of the days between the wars—the Loch Ness monster. Television technicians operating an echosounder say they have got a recording of a "moving object" under the water up there in that loch in Scotland where so many people over the years have claimed to have spotted the humped-back monster.

The object is too big for a salmon and didn't give the effect on the echosounding screen of a shoal of fish—so what else can it be but the monster!

Scientists plan to form an association to finance thorough radar sweeps of the whole loch—and settle once and for all whether this fabulous creature does exist.

Tickets for my Fair Lady secured by a man living in Devon for July 7, 1959. He doesn't mind waiting so long to get to see it. He has no option. That's the day he gets out of Dartmoor Prison and it's his celebration.

Trick question going the rounds: TUG is something commonly seen in public places. What is it and where do you see it? (Answer at foot of column.)

Sid Caesar, a stranger to folks in this country, arriving for a 13-week TV series, apologized to interviewing newsmen that he had nothing funny to say. "I'm not funny. I never crack any jokes," he said. "It's the characters I mimic who are funny."

Add to the list of new buildings for London, which list is hard to keep up with: That big war-caused hole on Shoe Lane behind the Express building on Fleet Street is to be filled by an expansive 15-story building to house the ELE phone exchange. FLEET! The newspaperman's exchange, short for Fleet Street. Why don't they dept. A housewives' association, pleading for better packaging, puts the very apt question—those boxes that detergent powders come in, why don't they make them square and squat instead of tall and thin, to fall over and get sodden in the wet, spill the contents?

Answer to trick question: TUG is OUT seen from the other side of a glass door.

Frogman Finds Sunken Ship; Hunts Gold

CAPETOWN (Reuters) — A frogman believes he has located the wreck of the Birkenhead, famous British troopship whose name became synonymous with heroism a century ago.

Frogman Nick Dekker's next step is to look for the large amount of gold bullion rumored to have gone down with the ship when she foundered on a reef Feb. 26, 1852.

Sunday he brought ashore pieces of brass, copper and lead from the wreck, which lies 90 feet down off the fishing village of Hermanus, about 70 miles from here.

Troops mustered on deck when the Birkenhead struck the reef. They did not break ranks before women and children aboard had left the boats. The ship went down with the troops, drowning 436 men.

The Day YOU Were Born

Clyde Brewster Woodburn, 112 Croft Street, is a longshoreman who spends his free time fixing up the house. Just last Monday his wife Barbara presented him with a new daughter.

On the day he was born: Unemployed English coal miners sailed for Canada to work in the harvest fields.

The canoe 'Canadian Friendship' paddled by John Nolan and Robert Copeman, arrived in Winnipeg after a 1,500-mile voyage down the river from Edmonton. The young men hoped to paddle all the way to Mexico.

A fire-engine racing to a brush fire on Erie Street, brushed the open doors of a street-car which had stopped to let off passengers at the corner of Government and Bastion. No one was injured.

Fire was blazing out of control through Goldstream woods. Prince George (Duke of Kent) left Southampton for a visit to this coast.

The British Columbia cricket team won the Dinwail trophy for the fourth consecutive year in Winnipeg.

Aimee Semple McPherson drew big crowds at her Angelus Temple. She had recovered from her recent eclipse in popularity during her mysterious "drowning-kidnapping" absence. British Columbia Airways advertised a revised schedule with 45-minute flights to Vancouver and one hour to Seattle.

The date? Saturday, August 11, 1928.

WHAT HAPPENED THE DAY YOU WERE BORN?

ACROSS B.C.

Body in Lake Solves Boy's Disappearance

NELSON — The disappearance of a 10-year-old minister's son from a Pentecostal camp near here 10 days ago was solved Sunday with recovery of his body from the west arm of Kootenay Lake.

RCMP found the body of Stewart Sandcock of Nakusp, B.C., against a wharf 15 miles east of Nelson, about three miles from the spot where the youngster apparently went for a swim July 31.

RUPERT QUIET

PRINCE RUPERT — The RCMP detachment here was all ready Saturday night for a repetition of rioting which ended British Columbia centennial celebrations in this coastal city a week earlier.

Inspector H. A. Bloxham reinforced the normal three-man night force at headquarters with 10 extra officers and held all squad cars in service through the night. Shore patrols from the visiting destroyers HMCS Antigonish and Waterford were on duty in the city.

But nothing happened. There wasn't even a fist fight.

"I don't think there will be any more trouble but I had extra men in reserve as a precaution," Insp. Bloxham said.

DOUGS' HEARING ENDS

KELOWNA — Five Sons of Freedom Doukhobors will be committed this week to stand trial on charges of conspiring together to manufacture explosives for use in damaging property.

A six-day preliminary hearing of the charges ended Saturday after the Crown had entered 44 exhibits, many of them said by police to be linked with recent bombings in the Okanagan area. Magistrate D. M. White said he will commit the five Friday. All have elected to be tried by judge and jury and have reserved their defence.

SWIMMER DROWNS

MISSION CITY — Robert Neuman, 62, of Langley drowned Sunday while swimming in Hatzik Lake, five miles east of here.

RCMP said Neuman went in for a swim, leaving his wife sitting in their parked car. A man who saw Neuman go under ran to get help but by the time rescuers reached him he was unconscious.

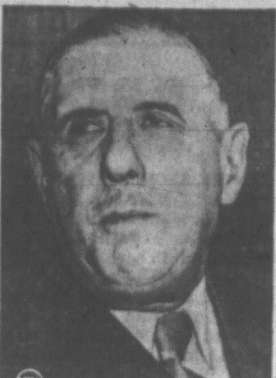

1,000 HOMES 'DRY'

RICHMOND — A six-inch water main was accidentally scooped up Saturday by a dredge in Moray Channel, leaving more than 1,000 homes and Vancouver airport on Sea Island without water.

$3,000 THEFT

NELSON — Thieves broke into Olson's Credit Jewellers store here during the weekend and took merchandise valued at almost $3,000.

Police said the intruders entered the store through a shed at the rear and removed 25 watches and a diamond engagement set.

MAJOR OBSTACLE has been overcome by Premier Charles de Gaulle in his program to give more power to future French governments. A consultative committee has finally accepted in principle the proposal for increasing the French president's powers.

KHRUSHCHEV BOAST:

'We're Unbeatable'

KUIBYSHEV, Russia (CP)—Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev told the West Sunday that the combined might of the Communist camp is unbeatable.

The Soviet leader, in a speech dedicating a huge hydro-electric station, accused Britain and the United States of open aggression against Lebanon and Jordan and of plotting aggression against the new Iraqi republic.

"We will do everything in our power to prevent them from unleashing a new war," Khrushchev told his audience on the Volga River.

"But if they do not come to their senses and if they unleash a new aggressive war we and all the other peace-loving nations of the world will do everything in our power to destroy the imperialist aggressors and establish peace throughout the world forever."

'North Frederick' Top Festival Film

LOCARNO, Switzerland (AP)—Ten North Frederick, an American film based on John O'Hara's novel of the same name, was awarded the Gold Trophy Sunday night for the best picture presented at the annual film festival here.

It was then that Khrushchev added that no one can defeat Communism's combined might. He charged that the United States and Britain scuttled a summit conference by rejecting Soviet proposals and used negotiations as a cover to pour more and more troops into Lebanon and Jordan. Khrushchev referred frequently to Communist China and the solidarity of the Communist camp, but he did not touch on the role Peiping is believed to have played in his decision last week to back out of the summit conference.

Printing Bureau Builders Called By Commons Committee Probers

OTTAWA (CP)—The Commons public accounts committee is to meet Tuesday morning to continue its inquiry into construction of the National Printing Bureau.

Tuesday afternoon committee members will take a bus to neighboring Hull, Que., for a first-hand look at the $16,200,000 bureau, originally estimated to cost $6,000,000.

The committee plans to call as witnesses leading figures concerned with construction of the building, still incomplete after almost 10 years' work.

Meanwhile, in Montreal, architect Ernest Cormier, who supervised construction of the federal government's printing bureau, says he is "being accused of things done by others" in the construction of the building.

He said in an interview here Saturday the air conditioning system in the bureau was built under his supervision to comply with a basis of design given him by the government.

He was commenting on statements made before the Commons public accounts committee by Major-General H. A. Young, deputy works minister.

General Young testified he had stopped payment of $60,000 to the Montreal architect because of faults discovered in the building's air conditioning system.

He said the "chief fault" lay in the fact that construction was started before final plans and specifications were made and that the onus of this rested with Mr. Cormier. The architect has already been paid $548,000 as consultant for the bureau.

COSTLY OVERHAUL

Gen. Young said the original air conditioning system, which cost $500,000 to $700,000, has to be overhauled at an estimated cost of $700,000.

The architect said he believed Gen. Young was testifying in good faith but did not possess all the facts. The general was not in on the project from the beginning. Planning for the bureau began in 1945 and Gen. Young was not appointed deputy until 1953, said Mr. Cormier. Construction started in 1949.

Mr. Cormier said the air conditioning system performed adequately and that a recommendation he had made for im-

GALLERY 'SLUMS'

No Roaches, Rats Found By Reporters

OTTAWA (CP) — Speaker Roland Michener told the Commons Saturday he has received no complaints this session or last about cockroaches or rats in the Parliamentary Press Gallery.

Douglas Fisher (CCF-Port Arthur) raised the question, saying there were "slum conditions" in the gallery.

Mr. Michener said fumigation takes place periodically. He said the Commons had to face the fact that physical facilities are becoming cramped, and "even the press" might have to suffer from restricted quarters.

LABATT'S PILSENER IS HERE! NOW....

In the subtle lingering taste, characteristic of a true pilsener, you'll discover the difference between Labatt's and other Canadian beers.

Months of exacting tests have ensured that LABATT'S PILSENER brewed in B.C. is precisely the same as the world famous product of the company's Ontario and Quebec breweries. Labatt's authentic pilsener recipe was obtained in 1950 from Herr Roman Vecovsky, brewmaster of the Pilsen Brewery, Pilsen, Czechoslovakia, birthplace of the world's most famous beer. A special strain of genuine European pilsener yeast further assures the true taste of pilsener. The light appearance preferred by Canadians is achieved by the use of Canadian barley. LABATT'S PILSENER is the only beer in the world endorsed by the brewmasters of seven leading European breweries.

Tennis Plums Travel South

Do or die efforts by a pair of California youngsters Saturday at the Victoria Lawn Tennis Club, brought home silverware in the 61st annual B.C. Open lawn tennis championships.

Both Jim Watson and Farel Footman of San Francisco battled up from near impossible odds to reign as men's and women's singles champions.

Watson, after trailing by two sets, came storming back to defeat Bill Rose of Portland in their best-of-five men's singles final, 4-6, 2-6, 6-2, 6-3, 7-5.

Miss Footman had to rally twice during the ladies' singles final with Canadian champion Eleanor Dodge of Montreal.

VICTORIA PAIR WINS

Miss Dodge opened up a 3-0 lead in the first set and seemed to stall, with Miss Footman, a 16-year-old high school student, pouring on the pressure. She took a 4-3 lead before Miss Dodge evened the count and then dropped back to lose the set 6-4.

The Canadian champ won the second set 6-3 and again was leading, 3-1, the third, before faltering, allowing Miss Footman to tie it up at 5-5 and forge ahead to win the set, match and championship 7-5.

A pair of titles came home to Victoria in the mixed and women's doubles with Sue Butt and Alex Stencell defeating Miss Footman and Dale Rohland 3-6, 6-3, 6-2 in the mixed.

Miss Dodge and a Victoria junior Sharon Whittaker came on to upset the reigning ladies' team of Bev Danby and Clare Lovett of Vancouver, 6-4, 6-3, while Merwin Miller of Pasadena teamed with Rose to defeat Watson and Rohland, 6-4, 6-4, in the men's doubles final.

Seattle's Paul Bugard defeated Mal Gosling of Bermuda 6-2, 6-4 in the junior veterans' singles; Mel Dranga of Seattle defeated Jack Smith of Texas in the senior veterans' 7-5, 6-1; defending champions Smith and Jack Parker of Victoria repeated against Dranga and Hank Bryant of Vancouver in the veteran's doubles 6-4, 1-6.

In the flights, Maureen Bray downed Helen Kohler 6-4, 6-3 and Reidar Getz upset Gosling 6-1, 6-4.

Burnside Blanks Mounties

Lefty Pete Burnside blanked Vancouver on three hits as the Phoenix Giants moved three full games ahead of the second-place Mounties in the Pacific Coast League race Sunday with a 1-0 victory.

San Diego took two from Seattle, 4-3 and 4-2, to move within a game of Vancouver. Portland two-timed Salt Lake City, 9-3 and 7-3, and Spokane beat Sacramento, 3-1.

The five-game series at Vancouver which opened Sunday could tell the tale in this year's pennant chase. Thus, Sunday's loss was a bitter pill for the Canucks to swallow.

It was Burnside's second straight shutout victory over Vancouver. Mounties' pitcher George Bamberger, displaying his usual brilliant control, extended his walkless innings to 6-2—two short of the PCL record.

Burnside, incidentally, also gave up no walks.

Rose City Crew Proves Class; Overpowers Calgary in Final

By IAN SMITH

Don't be surprised if the Rose City All-Stars of Portland, Ore., go right to the Little League World Series.

For if the class of baseball they displayed in the divisional tournament here Friday and Saturday was any indication, they could very well be the best Little League aggregation in the west.

They get a chance to test their strength further in the Regional Championships this weekend, in their home town, when they meet teams from throughout the western states.

The razor-sharp Rose City youngsters won their berth in the regionals in convincing fashion, clubbing Calgary International League All-Stars, 10-2, in the divisional final Saturday at Jaycee Park.

Portland had beaten Seattle West Ballard 4-1, in the semi-final round Friday while Calgary had edged past the Victoria American Leaguers, 1-0.

In the consolation game Saturday to decide third and fourth spots in the tourney, West Ballard took their revenge out on Victoria with a 4-1 victory that shunted the host club into last place.

Is there something you want to know? Do you want to win a set of valuable books or other instructive prizes? Then ask Andy.

Andy will answer questions submitted by child readers and those who write him. He selects in answer will receive worthwhile prizes.

The youngster who asks the first question answered each day receives a 20-volume set of Compton's Pictured Encyclopedia (Canadian edition) and, of the second question a Hammond Atlas or Globe.

Address your questions to "ask Andy," Victoria Daily Times.

Andy sends a complete, 15-volume set of Compton's Pictured Encyclopedia to Joan Pauke, aged 13, of Williamsport, Penn. for her question:

How Can You Tell Mushrooms From Toadstools?

The botanist does not divide the fungus plant family into mushrooms and toadstools. However, in everyday speech, these terms make a lot of sense. The mushrooms are fungi that taste good and will not harm you. The toadstools are the poisonous ones—and sometimes badly. Also, there is a large group of non-poisonous fungi which are tough, woody and inedible.

The last rule applies to the fungus spores. These are the

Every year a certain number of people eat toadstools which they mistake for mushrooms. Here is a word of warning to Andy to his friends. It is never smart to eat fungi you've gathered in the wild—even when you know all the rules for recognizing mushrooms. Certain toadstools look just like edible button mushrooms. Certain fungi are edible only at a certain stage of the life cycle. Tiny seedlets, clinging like dust to the underside of the umbrella: Mushroom spores are dark. Toadstool spores are pale or white. The expert will spend some time testing the spore color of any fungi he plans to eat. In mature fungi, the spore dust is loose and easy to see. In younger specimen, it may be tightly packed in the gills under the umbrella. In this case your wish to gather wild mushrooms, take along an expert. He will never gather young fungus plants. At the button stage it is almost impossible to tell what kind of a fungus a plant will grow up to be. He will choose fully grown, open umbrellas, and your expert will break a cap and place it gill side down on a piece of dark paper. He will place a tumbler upside down to form a little glass house over the fungus cap on its dark paper. This test is left undisturbed for 24 hours. By then rows of little spores will have fallen onto the paper

If the spores are white, the fungus is a toadstool. Another test is with the juices or liquids in the fungus. If the juice is light or milky, chances are the fungus is a toadstool.

So you see it is no easy job, even for an expert, to tell the mushrooms from the toadstools. And he will tell you that the easiest and safest way to get mushrooms is to buy them in a food store. These fungi have been especially grown for the table and, in any case, are likely to taste better than most wild varieties you can find.

ering mushrooms in the wild is most certainly not a do-it-yourself project.

Andy sends a Rainmond's International World Globe to Jean Saunders, age 11, of Fredericton, N.B., for her question: What Are Rainbows Made Of?

A rainbow is made of rain drops and sunbeams. The rain drops are falling through a dark rain cloud. The sunbeams shine on these little mirrors from the opposite side of the sky.

The mirror raindrops refract

Truffles and morels, however, are said to taste better than our reliable old mushroom and these fungi delicacies refuse to be cultivated. But it is never safe to sample them unless an expert has guaranteed them to be edible.

Year in the Dumps For Auto Industry

By DAVID J. WILKIE

DETROIT (AP) — The year 1958 will go into the auto industry's record books as one of the poorest of the post-war period.

OVERSEAS SALES LIFT FORD'S SAG AT HOME

TORONTO (CP) — Ford Motor Company of Canada Ltd. and its wholly-owned domestic and overseas subsidiaries had consolidated income after taxes in the six months ended June 30 of $10,200,000 compared with $9,900,000 in the corresponding period last year. This was equal to $6.16 a share compared with $5.98.

The current semi-annual report consolidates for the first time the operating results of wholly-owned overseas subsidiaries.

On the basis of the previous method of reporting, the company had six-month earnings of $2,600,000 compared with the 1957 half-year figure of $2,400,000 which included $2,000,000 of dividends from the overseas subsidiaries.

Increased sales by subsidiary companies in overseas markets partially offset reduced sales in Canada.

'Farmers' Tour Visits City On Way North

Eighty-three American tourists from New York, New England, Maine and Massachusetts were sightseeing in Victoria Friday before leaving aboard the steamer Princess Louise for a vacation cruise to Alaska.

They were members of a sightseeing tour arranged by the American Agriculturist, an old-established magazine published at Ithaca, New York.

The agriculturist has organized tours of North America for its readers since 1931. Originally the parties were composed mainly of farmers but they have since been extended to include business and professional workers as well.

The 1958 tour takes in Yellowstone Park, Seattle, Victoria and Alaska, returning to New York via Vancouver, Banff, Lake Louise and Winnipeg.

"Whenever possible we arrange for a stop-over in Victoria because it is different from all the other places we visit," said V. L. BeDeil, a retired New York railroadman, who organizes the tours for the American Agriculturist.

Pat Bay Hangar Fire Damage Fairly Heavy

Damage estimated at "several hundred" dollars was caused by fire at Fairley Aviation Co. of Canada Ltd. hangar at Patricia Bay Airport Friday noon.

An overheated metal-treating furnace was blamed as cause of the blaze which charred the interior of a 16 by 20-foot room in a hangar annex and caused smoke damage to other parts of the building.

Smoke from the fire was spotted by a B.C. Forest Service lookout at Duncan and six fire trucks from the airport and Sidney volunteer fire department rushed to the scene to prevent a conflagration.

As a safety measure three aircraft inside the hangar and a number of others parked outside were moved to a safe distance.

'OPERATION COMFORT'

Private Homes Take Overflow of Tourists

Tourist accommodation in Victoria is not at its peak and more than 200 visitors have been accommodated in private homes in the past week, says publicity commissioner George I. Warren.

"The tourist season is now almost what we expected it to be in this centennial year," Mr. Warren said.

Herman Rebner Wins Carriers' Bicycle Race

Herman Rebner won the Victoria Cycling Club's newspaper carrier race Saturday as he covered the 2.4 mile course in five minutes 52 seconds.

Doug Boden finished second and Richard Warrington was third. Al Foster captured fourth place, Dan Russell claimed fifth and Andrew Clelan came in sixth.

There were 20 entrants. President Ernie Wilson presented the winning rider with a cup. First six finishers will receive memberships in the Victoria Cycling Club.

It has been one of the few years in which the industry voluntarily has had to hold down production to avoid being overwhelmed by its own output. Present indications are unit production this year will not exceed 4,250,000 passenger cars.

If the estimate is correct this year's production will be the lowest by U.S. factories in a decade. In 1948, still hampered by war-created shortages, the industry built 3,909,000 passenger cars.

There have been numerous assertions, from sources outside the industry, that the car makers fashioned their own recession with styling that did not meet with car buyer approval. It has been said in some quarters, too, that high price tags and higher maintenance costs, encouraged a growing invasion of the American market by foreign-built, lower priced vehicles.

RESTYLED FOR 1959

If car styling had anything to do with the drop in vehicle sales the industry's volume troubles should evaporate with introduction of 1959 models. Most of the cars have been restyled.

But few sources close to the industry expect the new models, advanced in styling though they may be, to touch off a boom. Industry executives took, instead, for a modest upturn.

The industry figures show an upturn is about due after three years of relatively low-volume output and retail deliveries. Its top manufacturing and sales chiefs vigorously deny the industry, by the styling of its product, brought on the recession.

The brightest phase of the industry's present situation is the successful reduction of new car inventories. These have been cut nearly 200,000 units from the year's high point of 865,000 cars March 1.

Of greater importance to the car buyer is the fact the reduced inventories mean an end to the big price cuts that have marked most model close-outs of previous years.

Available at lower prices, they competed with 1958 models.

Ottawa Urged To Provide More Grain Storage

OTTAWA (CP) — The federal government was urged Friday to make funds available for increased public storage facilities for western grain.

The recommendation is contained in a report tabled in the House by the agriculture committee following a two-day study of operations of the Canadian wheat board and the board of grain commissioners.

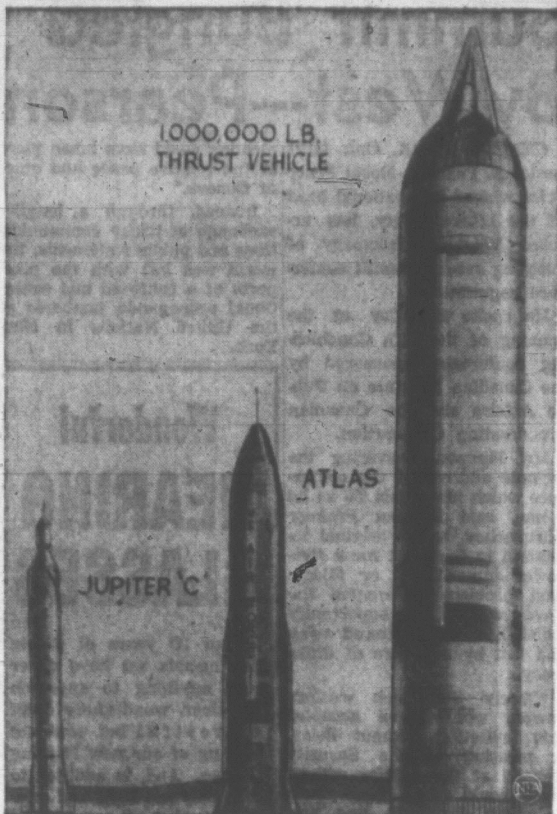

The report said the government should consider "the provision of more satisfactory public storage for grain which should be encouraged and assisted by the government."

Canada now has elevator facilities for the storage of about 636,000,000 bushels of western grain. Government-owned elevators at Moose Jaw and Saskatoon, Sask., at Calgary, Edmonton and Lethbridge, Alta., and at Prince Rupert, B.C., have a storage capacity of 18,350,000 bushels.

The committee proposed that consideration be given to classifying rapeseed and soybeans as grain for the purpose of freight rates. That would reduce freight rates on the two commodities.

It recommended that tolls for the movement of grain through the St. Lawrence Seaway be set at "minimum levels."

It also proposed that western producers be compensated for cracked rapeseed taken as dockage or waste.

AIM AT SIX-MILLION-POUND THRUST—Sketch shows, at right, a projected missile that can be boosted with a million-pound thrust engine. It is compared for size with well-known existing missiles. Rocketdyne division of North American Aviation, Inc., has just received U.S. Air Force contract to build major components for the unprecedented engine. An essential step toward interplanetary exploration, the development of a single-chambered engine in the one-million-pound class will make a cluster of six for a six-million-pound thrust relatively easy. The million-pound engine will have a liquid propellant system, similar to those used in the Rocketdyne engines for the Atlas ICBM, the Thor and Jupiter IBM's and the Redstone missile that provided the first-stage boost for the satellite-launching Jupiter-C.

Galloping Inflation Fears Spark Action

WASHINGTON (AP) — Will creeping inflation get off its knees and start galloping? Washington officials fear the possibility and already are dosing the U.S. economy with what they hope is preventive medicine.

Creeping inflation, the slow but steady increase in living costs, has been going on since the war. Official figures show that people in the United States now must spend $1.24 to buy what cost 63 cents in 1941.

The man who bought $100,000 of life insurance 17 years ago now needs a $20,000 policy if he wants the same measure of protection.

This is a grim record but some economists and politicians say it's nothing compared with what might happen in the next few years.

They are worried because the government may go into the red another $13,000,000,000 this year. To pay its bills, the government will resort to massive borrowing which will push the national debt to a record high.

Federal borrowing usually is inflationary. It moves more money into circulation — in some cases $6 for each $1 borrowed. All that money has a way of getting spent. And if the supply of goods becomes tight, people with money bid up prices.

An immediate worry is the wage-price increase. Steel industry wages went up July 1 and steel prices rose a month later. These increases eventually will be distributed throughout the economy. Prices will go up accordingly.

What is Washington doing?

The last week brought two noteworthy examples of action: 1. Eisenhower vetoed an appropriations bill for the first time since taking office. Why add $500,000,000 to an already staggering deficit when the appropriation can be postponed, he argued.

2. The federal reserve board decreed that stock buyers may cover only 30 per cent of their purchases with borrowed money, instead of 50 per cent.

Big Tanker Reaches Northern Mining Port

CHURCHILL, Man. (CP) — The 2,665-ton oil tanker Makawela and the supply ship Ardgarry have arrived at the Rankin Inlet Nickel Mine on the west coast of Hudson Bay 385 miles north of here, port authorities have announced.

The tanker is the largest ship ever to reach the northern mining port. It carried a year's supply of oil.

An ore carrier is expected at the mine soon to pick up nickel concentrate, which will be brought to Churchill and shipped by rail to a smelter at Fort Saskatchewan, Alta.

Amyot Swims 42 Miles On St. Lawrence River

QUEBEC (CP) — Quebec City marathon swimmer Jacques Amyot stroked his way through the St. Lawrence River from Ste. Anne de Beaupre to Quebec and return Saturday—a distance of 42 miles.

Amyot, who has conquered the English Channel and has made several marathon swims in St. Lawrence and in Lake St. John, covered the return distance in 13 hours and 10 minutes.

TODAY'S GRAIN

WINNIPEG (CP) — High temperatures and lack of moisture in some areas of the prairie grain belt prompted demand in all grains today on the Winnipeg Grain Exchange.

Prices scored fair advances amid light offerings.

Flax especially was under strong demand, with commission houses and international interests credited with buying. Both domestic and American shipping interests were buying oats and barley, especially the latter.

Export interest in Canadian grains continued quiet. Overnight loadings of Canadian wheat: Japan 630,000 bushels; United Kingdom 600,000; Belgium and Venezuela small lots. Lakehead prices for class two, IWA and domestic wheat were all unchanged from Friday.

MARKET SUMMARIES

Industrials Go Up In Light Trading

Turnovers were lighter at Toronto and Wall Street today though Toronto industrials and New York aircrafts moved forward.

Wall Street generally showed an upward turn to high 1958 levels.

AT TORONTO volume at 2 p.m. was 3,166,000 shares, down from Friday's 4,106,000 at the same hour.

On index industrials were ahead more than two points at a 1958 high of 469.88. Western oils moved forward strongly until noon, falling off under profit-taking. Base metals were one-quarter lower but golds were down only a decimal point.

Western oils were just down slightly with changes less than 10 cents in the last hour.

AT NEW YORK volume amounted to an estimated 2,900,000 shares for the day, compared with Friday's 3,650,000 shares. The Associated Press average of 60 stocks at noon was up 20 cents at $186.

AT LONDON the market was firm on selective demand. Gilt-edged securities advanced.

Foreign bonds created little interest. Dollar stocks were higher.

Industrials were generally firm. Hudson Bay Oil and Gas advanced sharply but British Aluminium was lower following the sharp fall in half-yearly earnings of Aluminium Ltd.

AT VANCOUVER trading in mines was brisk with prices moving upward during the forenoon.

Recent reports indicate Soviet authorities have decided on a crash program to boost diamond production for export.

The reports emphasized that diamond extraction is going on not only on a round-the-clock but round-the-year basis.

The opening of the first big factory for diamond mining in Yakutia was reported last June. A few weeks later a second factory was put into operation ahead of schedule in Mirny, western Yakutia.

While no official figures have been released on the carat output from the area, there almost certainly has been a substantial increase under the impetus of the current program.

Yakutia's production, however, probably still is a trickle compared with South Africa's output.

Atom Tests Danger To Future Health UN Group Reports

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP)—A 15-nation UN scientific committee report on the dangers of radioactivity was expected today to increase pressures for a world ban on nuclear weapon tests.

The report says that even a slow, slight increase in world radioactivity from nuclear test explosions and other sources endangers mankind's future health.

While approving a report to this effect, the committee nevertheless rejected a Soviet demand that it call for an immediate end to nuclear test explosions.

RELEASED SUNDAY

The report was released Sunday by the United Nations scientific committee on the effects of atomic radiation. More than two years of study went into preparation for the 228-page document.

The committee members agreed unanimously that even the smallest amounts of radiation are liable to cause harmful genetic and perhaps other effects such as cancer, leukemia and shortening of life.

They agreed, too, that "even a slow rise in the environmental radioactivity in the world, whether from weapon tests or any other sources, might eventually cause appreciable damage to large populations before it could be identified as due to radiation."

Unanimous too, was the conclusion that present attempts to evaluate radiation effects on man can produce only tentative estimates with wide margins of uncertainty.

CONFIRMS U.S. REPORT

The U.S. Atomic Energy Commission said the UN report generally confirms the statements in the June 1956 report of the U.S. National Academy of Sciences with respect to the possible hazards from radiation.

The majority of the committee took the view that the problem of controlling or curbing nuclear tests and other sources of radiation lies outside the group's scope.

MRS. MARGARET MORRIS

SON, a friendly brown-eyed widow, has been calling on patients in Victoria hospitals and nursing homes ever since she came here with her husband, the late William Morrison, in 1919. In this way she is known to hundreds of lonely men and women in the Gorge and Menzies Street nursing homes and in St. Joseph's and the Royal Jubilee hospitals. Mrs. Morrison also visits shut-ins living in rooms and apartments, and often takes them small gifts. "She is never tired of listening to other people's troubles," one elderly woman wrote of her, "and so many of us look forward to her visits." Mrs. Morrison began touring hospitals in Glasgow in 1914 and has been doing it ever since.

Summit 'Bungled' By West---Pearson

GENEVA PARK, Ont. (CP)

Lester B. Pearson, Nobel Peace Prize winner and national head of the Liberal party, has accused Western diplomacy of bungling recent summit conference negotiations.

He spoke Saturday at the opening of the 27th Couchiching conference, sponsored by the Canadian Institute on Public Affairs and the Canadian Broadcasting Corporation.

Mr. Pearson, delivering the keynote address of the conference which has Crisis '58 as its theme, said Russian Premier Khrushchev, in his original invitation to the West for a five-power summit-talk or Middle East problems, presented the West with an opportunity which had been frittered away and lost by a failure of diplomacy.

"Surely the three western powers would have accepted this invitation without delay. A meeting of the Security Council at the regular official level could then have been called to formalize this procedure and a small summit meeting could have taken place in the relative peace and quiet of Geneva."

Scurrah Plumps For Status Quo On Store Hours

Mayor Percy Scurrah said today he favors retention of the status quo in shop closing hours.

He took his stand in commenting on a letter from the Merchants' 5½-Day Week Association listing 246 retail firms requesting no change in the present set up.

The letter was sent to City Hall "to let the mayor and council know that the great majority of retail stores in Victoria do not want the six-day week," wrote A. Bruce Humber on behalf of the organization.

May 14 city council altered previous closing regulations to allow six-day shopping June 15 to Sept. 15 and all through December.

Longshoremen's Pay Offer Vote Due Late Today

Results are expected to be known late today of a vote on a wage offer taken Friday by 1,300 B.C. members of the International Longshoremen's and Warehousemen's Union.

The union executive last week told members to reject a conciliation recommendation for a 10-cent-an-hour wage increase. They sought an average 61½ cents on a present average wage of $2.57 an hour.

A thumbs-down vote by the longshoremen would precipitate a strike affecting all deep-sea shipping in the province. Some 200 Victoria waterfront workers would be affected.

It also extended the Wednesday closing to 1 p.m. in other periods.

But council promised to review the situation in September. "I don't know what council will do," said the mayor, "but so far as I'm concerned the status quo should be maintained."

"So far as I know the present system is working well and I don't see any reason to change it."

Another merchant group has been campaigning for six-day shopping the year around.

Ald. Geoffrey Edgell said that council will be faced with a "delicate situation" in weighing the arguments to be advanced by both sides.

He pointed out that the provincial Hours of Work Act, restricting the number of hours that employees could be required to work, had eliminated the chief reason for council's past decision to restrict shop hours.

"But the whole question still has to be weighed very carefully before any decision is made," he said.

Ex-MP Wants Yukon Made Province or Part of B.C.

By NORMAN CRIBBEN

The Yukon Territory should be made into a separate province of Canada and divided into counties like Ontario, says George Black, former speaker of the House of Commons and federal Conservative member for The Yukon from 1921 to 1949.

Alternatively, he believes The Yukon should join with British Columbia.

"The Yukon has passed the stage when it should be governed from Ottawa," said the veteran parliamentarian, interviewed during a visit to Victoria today.

"It is time the territory handled its own affairs with its own legislative assembly composed of members of the present Yukon Council."

JOIN B.C.?

"This is particularly important now that Alaska has become a state. But if that is premature, I believe The Yukon should join with British Columbia as early as possible."

Mr. Black, who lived in the Yukon for 61 years before making his home in Vancouver, pointed out that the territory is now producing hundreds of millions of dollars' worth of gold, silver, lead and zinc.

"With this wealth the territory should be fully capable of supporting itself as an independent province."

A former commissioner of the Yukon, Mr. Black recalled that ex-premier Pattullo suggested the Yukon should join B.C. during the 1930s. But the province was then "so heavily in debt that most Yukoners were opposed to it."

Mrs. Black, accompanying her husband on his Victoria visit, said she believed many pioneers and sons of pioneers who have left The Yukon would be encouraged to return if living standards were improved, either through provincial autonomy or union with B.C.

Mr. and Mrs. Black would like to settle in Victoria if they can find a suitable home here. "but," said Mr. Black with a smile, "it would have to be within the financial scope of a retired Conservative politician."

EARNED PRIVILEGE

He served for a number of years on the board of directors of the club and was made a privileged member when he retired in 1945.

After retirement he devoted himself to a number of community projects including work with the Protestant Orphanage. He is survived by two sons, Edward and Douglas, of North Vancouver; a daughter, Ruth, 520 Transit Road; and four grandchildren.

He was pre-deceased by his wife in May.

Funeral services will be conducted by Rev. the Archdeacon A. E. de L. Nunns at St. Mary's Church, Oak Bay, Wednesday at 3.15 p.m. followed by cremation.

CHARLES PANGMAN

'Murdered' U.S. Woman Sought Here

The lawyer for convicted murderer L. Ewing Scott of Los Angeles, now on the B.C. coast in a hunt for the woman his client is supposed to have killed, said in Vancouver Saturday "it is quite possible that she is in the Vancouver-Victoria area."

He added "she likes to travel and she likes English people."

Morris Levine, the lawyer, said he had received a number of calls and letters "suggesting Mrs. Scott has been seen in Canada."

Scott, 61, now is appealing his conviction and life sentence for the murder of his wife. Her body has never been found.

The Scott case first gained prominence in May, 1955, when the wealthy Mrs. Scott disappeared from her large estate. Scott was under indictment for forgery in connection with withdrawals from his missing wife's bank account when he jumped $25,000 bail and fled to Canada. He was arrested a year later at the Canadian end of the Windsor-Detroit tunnel.

ASK THE TIMES

Q.—Is there any reason why my corpse, after registration of death, should not be wrapped in a blanket and taken by my family to the crematorium, a course I would prefer?—W.H.A.

A.—Yes, The crematorium will not accept remains except in a casket. This is for reasons of health. An exposed body of one who has died of a contagious disease might spread that disease before final disposal of the remains. Also in cases of accidental death where the body is severely damaged, it would not be in the best of taste to wrap it in a blanket. The casket is cremated with the corpse, also for health reasons.

Anyone wishing a question answered is invited to send the problem along to The Times, addressed to—Ask the Times. Editor, Questions and answers will be published daily.

All questions should deal with matters of fact and be of general interest. The Times does not undertake to solve confidential or legal problems. Nor will it attempt to put a value on old coins, stamps or antiques. These should be submitted to dealers.

DWARF FIRE LOSSES IN WOODS

Bugs, Disease Savage Killers

Unceasing Battle Waged By Scientists, Woodsmen

(This summer British Columbians have been shocked by terrific losses to our economy by forest fires. Yet, two other forest enemies, working quietly, but with terrific efficiency, dwarf fire damage by the extent of their annual "kill." This is the first of three articles on the insect and disease war against trees—a war we are not sure we are winning.)

By PETE LOUDON

When the woodsmen of British Columbia have completed their cut this year and converted the felled trees to smooth, merchantable lumber, they will have culled out 1,000,000,000 board feet of waste.

This is the lost treasure of the west.

This is the spoilage caused by insects and disease.

This is eight times the average annual loss by forest fires.

This is $70,000,000 out of the pockets of loggers, operators and governments.

This lumber would build 77,000 five-room homes.

And yet this great loss is only the waste in timber felled. The wasted timber still standing in the forests, still spreading itself like cancer through the green heritage of future generations, is beyond realistic estimate.

One disease, decay, is known to have spoiled 25 billion cubic feet of timber still uncut—that's almost 125,000,000,000 board feet.

If the decayed trees could all be collected in one rotten forest, it would cover 7,500,000 acres, almost the area of Vancouver Island.

At the present rate of cutting by B.C. lumbermen, that amount of timber would sustain production for 25 years.

These estimates result from federal forest research.

So what are we doing about it?

First, the public, you and I and the milkman, can each do his part to keep down forest fires. But it takes experts to fight infestation or a fungus that floats in a breeze.

Citizens Must See Government Acts

About all the man in the street can do is see that he has a government aware to the peril and willing to spend money for microscopes, airplanes, toxic sprays and teams of biologists, pathologists and zoologists to fight an unrelenting war.

Both Canada and British Columbia have recognized this responsibility. Victoria is a headquarters for agencies of both governments co-operating in this battle, with industry.

The federal government maintains a forest biology laboratory here. The investigations and experimental work of this laboratory, result in vital findings. These are passed along as advice to the provincial forest service and industry, to take effective defence action.

The federal service has 25 research officers and 33 rangers and technicians. There is a sub-laboratory at Vernon. In the fiscal year 1955-56 the total federal expenditure on insect and disease surveys was $373,125 within this province.

Is it enough? Former chief justice, now B.C. forestry adviser Gordon Sloan said in his 1956 forestry report:

"Direct and indirect methods of insect and disease control so far under review, even where effective, are more or less palliative," — give only temporary relief.

He mentions importance of forest sanitation, biological controls and long-term good forest management. Then he adds, "... the key to the successful application of any of them, and the discovery of new procedures, lies in unremitting research."

Mr. Sloan also notes about three times the amount spent on forest improvement research is being spent by industry on product improvement.

Unless future explorations show science is gaining on the forest killers, industry might better spend its research dollars on forest protection.

Failing that, one day there will be no forest products to improve.

GIANT TANKER HERE TUESDAY FOR DRYDOCK

One of the three largest tank ships in the world will enter Government Graving Dock, Esquimalt, at 7 p.m. Tuesday.

She is the 851-foot giant Ms. George Champion, largest ship to enter the dock since the Queen Elizabeth was here during the Second World War.

George Champion is in for survey and clean-up by Yards Ltd. She will present the trickiest docking problem ever handled here.

When she is in the dock there will be only 7½ inches clearance on either side of her bilge tank.

At another point farther up the hull there will be only 25 inches clearance each side as she crosses the sill of the drydock.

George Champion is owned by Universe Tank Ships, New York, and was built six months ago in Japan.

This will be her first dry-docking since launching.

Britain's minister of supply, Aubrey Jones, MP, will visit Victoria near the end of August en route to England from Australia. While here he will visit the Pacific Naval Research Laboratory in Esquimalt. Mr. Jones' visit in Vancouver as well as Victoria, will be for four days starting on the 26th.

Another Olive, Green That Is, Shows Up Here

An international contest to find someone called Olive Green has produced two ladies of that name in Victoria.

The Spanish Green Olive Institute in Chicago wants a candidate of that name to crown Queen Green Olive and rule the groves as Olive Woman of the year.

Mrs. Olive Green, 2330 Trent, was the first to contact the Times and offer to go. She was followed quickly by Mrs. Olive Green, 1700 Foul Bay Road, who was just as keen.

Both ladies are avid olive eaters eagerly anticipating entering the contest.

Now it is up to the Olive Institute to decide whether one of them makes the trip.

Drink, Reducing Drug Land Woman in Court

A combination of alcohol and a reducing drug was blamed in city police court today for the actions of a Vancouver woman charged with false pretenses at Hudson's Bay Co. store Saturday morning.

June Hawryluk pleaded guilty to obtaining goods under $50 value by giving a false name and charging purchases of clothing and cosmetics valued at $31.98.

Counsel Alan Bigelow said

according to medical advice the weight-reducing drug and alcohol together may make people do things they would not normally do.

He pointed out the store was partly to blame also for allowing a charge purchase by a person not properly identified.

"I agree with you wholeheartedly, Mr. Bigelow," Magistrate A. I. Thomas said.

He remanded the woman to Tuesday—in custody—for sentence.

'SHELLSHOCK, DEAFNESS' NO EXCUSE

Self-Styled 'Ward of Queen', Vagrant Faces Cheque Charge

Extravagant claims of shellshock, drunkenness and being a "ward of the Queen" failed to save a mainland man from conviction for vagrancy in city police court today.

William Wallace McLeod, 34, of no fixed address, pleaded not guilty to the charge and was remanded for sentence to Thursday by Magistrate A. I. Thomas.

He will then be tried also on a charge of false pretences with intent to defraud the estate of the late clothing Cee Fletcher. Police said he passed a worthless cheque for $20 and received the cash from Royal Trust Co. and Mary Fletcher, executors.

Det. William Andrews told court he attended at Marshall Wells Store, 724 Fort, at about 11 p.m., Aug. 2 where manager John G. Martin told him the accused tried to cash a cheque for $15.

The detective said McLeod told him at that time he was Capt. Ralph Owens of the 47-foot tugboat Arko II out of Port Alberni.

He said the accused told him he had contacted Mr. Martin so late that night because he had just heard his three-year-old son was drowned in a lake near Cranbrook.

The officer said there was no such person as Jack Gilbert Owens, Q.C.

In court McLeod submitted he was a pensioner under the Canadian Pensions Act, produced a Canadian Army discharge certificate from 1941 and said, "Being a ward of the Queen I don't see how a vag charge can stand up."

When court clerk William Ooster read the second charge, McLeod claimed deafness, so the clerk left his desk and read the charge a foot from McLeod's ear in the prisoner's box.

TOPICS OF THE DAY

The plight of a middle-aged couple who were ruined last week when their Esquimalt home burned may be eased tonight by generous Esquimalt residents.

A "household effects shower" is planned for the unlucky pair, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Taylor, at 8 p.m. in the Community Hall.

The couple had "little or no insurance" and residents are urged to come and bring any utensils and household supplies whether broken or used, to assist them.

Five hundred visitors called at Victoria and Island Publicity Bureau Sunday—a record number for Sundays—Commissioner George Warren said today.

The bureau had 1,008 personal calls on Friday, and 1,037 on Saturday.

A grass fire which broke out near the new Sangster School on Metchoin Road at the La- goon Road corner was extinguished Saturday by the Col- wood Volunteer Fire Department.

The 1959 convention of the International Sourdough Association may be held in Victoria if the efforts of the British Columbia delegation are rewarded at this year's meeting in Long Beach, California.

The delegates, headed by international president Tom Telford, of Vancouver, will put up a strong lobby for the capital city convention site at the meeting August 14 through 17.

Ronald W. Kenny, 1710 Duch- ess, was fined $250 and his driver's licence was suspended 30 days when he pleaded guilty in Saanich police court today to a charge of impaired driving.

He also pleaded guilty to a charge of driving without a British Columbia licence and was fined $25.

Kenny said he had an Alberta licence and was returning to the Prairies next month.

Free ice cream, suckers, pony rides and boat trips were given to more than 40 children of the Protestant Orphanage Sat- urday at Beaver Lake.

The treat, sponsored by the Optimist Club of Victoria, is now in its fifth year.

You may soon be paying less for your coffee. Price is expected to go down by two cents a pound this week.

Several big U.S. coffee companies are reported cutting their prices two to four cents a pound, and a two-cent reduction is expected in Victoria as a result.

Reduction will be made in the large grocery stores at first, the smaller ones following.

WHEN TO OPEN GIFTS

Is it proper to open a gift in the presence of the giver? Once in a while I notice that when I hand a gift to someone, it isn't opened until after I leave. Before my cousin was married, I took her a wedding gift which she put aside until I departed, and I felt a little hurt. Louise Davis Answers: Except for wedding gifts, I see no reason why a person should wait until the giver departs before opening it, unless there are other people around who might be embarrassed that they didn't give something, or unless there might be other awkward circumstances at the time. It is always such fun to open something in the presence of the giver, for it is sharing the joy. If there are others around and the receiver is in doubt, she can ask, "Do you mind if I open this now?" As for wedding gifts, most brides maintain a strict gift-opening routine. They usually like to be alone as much as possible to avoid confusion, disorder or error, especially during the period when other gifts are arriving. Some paste a number on each. The items must be listed with the corresponding number and names of the givers. With such an efficient system, you should make allowances even for a cousin.

Models were Nona Damaske, Jan Joslin, Helen Beirnes, Pat Humpel, Ricki Nicholls, Crystal Burton and Jimmy Crosley. Men's styles were presented by Hugh Curtis and the commentator was Kay Ellis.

Silhouette in everything from daytime to evening wear was described by Mrs. Ellis as the "regal look" and highlighted by richly textured fabrics, feathers and furs.

Waistlines fitted loosely, shoulders were smoothly natural and the over-all effect of all the fashions was slender.

Colors were in "royal rich hues," the commentator said, "that resembled a sun-drenched stained-glass window."

PARIS FASHIONS

Dior Line 'Bottom Heavy'

BY KITTY DIXON

Seventh in a series written by Times reporter Kitty Dixon on the new season's picture from the fashion capital of the world.

PARIS — If you ask me, the Christian Dior models look downright bottom heavy. It's all very well for Yves St. Laurent, the late Dior's fair-haired boy and successor, to lower the hemline. But his doing it in conjunction with the raised waistline is hard to take.

Other fashion houses have kept skirts ultra-short — just covering the knees — thus maintaining a certain balance between bodice and skirt.

The effect is good. Then if you can picture the Dior costume, with waistline smack under the bust and skirt falling to about three inches below knee level, you'll understand my concern.

If Yves is taking us back to what is considered a normal skirt length, I wish he'd lower the waistline, too.

Every line in the Dior collection is curved to exemplify the "Arc" — curved collars, necklines, pockets.

Many suits have big collars worn out over matching collarless coats. This trick reappears in dress design with collars of the dresses worn over plain bolero tops.

Evening gowns are starry with jewel embroideries. High waistlines are often accented by bows or clusters of self fabric roses placed just below the bust.

Hat styles are varied, with military helmets (Victoria Girls' Drill Team type) on top of the list. Some are complete, with plumes which are often attached upside down so the feathers arch over the face — a nose length.

A lot of Eastern influence showed up in the millinery department, too, with some hats shaped like minarets and others like domes. For cocktail tails there were tiny pillboxes, about four inches in diameter and one inch high, having veils which sweep to waist length.

Dior shoe designer, Roger Vivier, has kept the pointed toe in style, elongating it even more than last season.

But stop breathing a sigh of relief. Last year's shoes won't do, it seems. Heels, although slimmer than ever, don't curve from the arch of the shoe, but are straight.

Always some catch!

Variations on pointed toes: Some narrow to about half an inch across then are sliced off in a square. Others narrow to the same width then finish in an arc. Looks to me like these shoes have been bitten off at the toe.

But despite bitten-off toes and the bottom-heavy look, the Dior collection is a delight from start to finish.

Come to think of it, I shouldn't complain about the latter.

The bottom-heavy look should suit my dimensions perfectly.

Former Local Girl Wed in South

Of interest in Victoria and on Vancouver Island is the marriage that took place in Los Angeles recently when Miss Patricia Marie Hillier, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. David F. Hillier, formerly of this city and now of Los Angeles, exchanged vows with Donald Hiram Poletiek, son of Mr. and Mrs. Otto Poletiek, El Monte, Calif.

The bride attended Qualicum Beach public school and graduated from Victoria High School. Given in marriage by her father, she was an attractive picture in a gown of Chantilly lace in ballerina length. She carried a bouquet of red roses.

For the double-ring ceremony, maid of honor Miss Carolyn Hillier wore a red and white dotted Swiss dress. She carried a bouquet of white carnations. Another attendant, Miss Linda Nyhoff, was in an identically styled dress. She carried a basket of red carnations.

Best man was Bert Nylund and ushers were Don Simpson and Jim Young.

After a honeymoon in Mexico, the couple are now making their home in Los Angeles.

English Visitors

Mr. and Mrs. T. Rhys-Jones are in Victoria from Exmouth, Devon, England, visiting Mr. Rhys-Jones' mother and sister, Mrs. T. Rhys-Jones, Sr., and Mrs. Thayer at their home on Beresford Place. The visitors will leave Victoria in early September.

Red and white gladioli decorated First United Church Saturday evening for the wedding of Patricia May, eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. S. E. Scurrah, Topaz Avenue, and John Oswald Emslie, son of Mrs. K. Emslie, Cochrane Street.

Rev. Douglas Carr conducted the service, assisted by Rev. Leighton Streight.

Traditional wedding music was played by organist Miss Margery Vaughan. Allan Husband sang "Bless This House" during the signing of the register.

Entering the church on the arm of her father, the petite dark haired bride was radiant in her gown of white silk embroidered faille. The princess line dress featured a strapless bodice of scalloped faille over pleated nylon net and the skirt was of similar net fully gathered under a net ruching. The gown was completed with a tiny bolero jacket of the same material as the dress, featuring a Peter Pan collar, tiny self buttons down the front and lily-point sleeves. Her floor-length veil of illusion net edged with a Chantilly lace band, was held with a coronet in a heart design of embroidered seed pearls, iridescent sequins and rhinestones. Her bouquet was of red roses and stephanotis.

A quartet of attendants preceded the bride up the aisle. They wore similar dresses of white embroidered nylon organdy over net and colored taffeta. The fitted bodices had tiny cap sleeves and the full skirts were finished with wide pleated taffeta sashed with large bows and cascading panels at the back.

They carried bouquets in tones to match their dresses. They were: Miss Beverley Gillies, maid of honor and the Misses Carolyn Scurrah, Rosemary Emslie and Sylvia Scurrah, bridesmaids.

Bevan Horton was best man and ushering were Lawrence St. Hilaire, Louis De Macedo and Andrew Rittich.

First United Church Fellowship hall was setting for a reception following the service.

Victor Galt proposed the toast to the bride.

Motoring through the United States to Banff and Lake Louise, the new Mrs. Emslie wore an aqua colored knitted suit and beige accessories. She topped the ensemble with a soft fur stole and a cream tone glamilia corsage.

On their return from their honeymoon, the couple will make their home at 1300 Gladstone Avenue.

Let's talk REAL ESTATE

By Don Whyte

The Oak Bay Municipal Council has before it a by-law to amend the existing zoning by-laws. The amendments are directly concerned with the building of apartment blocks, and if they are passed without change, they will preclude further building of apartment blocks in Oak Bay. With existing zoning and the Oak Bay needs, apartment blocks are the immediate need. The nature of the municipality is such that the highest and best use of property along Beach Drive is more properly an apartment use. It is a world-wide principle that land will always eventually reach its highest and best use, and where there is a demand it will eventually be met.

It cost the municipality far less to have an apartment block erected on a serviced site than to create new streets on which to build new homes. The costs of putting in new water mains, sewers, storm drains, road beds, curbing, curb, sidewalk and gutter and the interest on the money borrowed to do these projects, help to raise the per capita cost. The payment of these projects is borne partially by the municipality as a whole and in greater part by the people living on the new streets.

The biggest factor, of course, in favor of apartment blocks is the tremendous increase in revenue to the municipality. A good example is a house and lot which in 1954 paid taxes of $20.25. The same site with an apartment block on it paid taxes this year of $4,071.70, at little or no cost to the municipality.

School pressures and costs are also helped by the number of apartment blocks. There are generally fewer children in apartment blocks and yet half the taxes levied on them are for school costs. The effect of this amendment will be far reaching, it certainly will affect the future of Oak Bay as a separate municipality. Let's hope the council will use the vision and leadership the people of Oak Bay have come to expect from it.

British Columbia's 5,500 salmon fishermen continue to harvest a bumper salmon run today, following the postponement of a strike deadline.

The strike, scheduled to start at midnight Saturday, was postponed after a new offer was made by the B.C. Fisheries Association. A poll of fishermen on a previous offer by the association showed 75 per cent favored a strike.

The Joint United Fishermen

and Allied Workers' Union and B.C. Native Brotherhood bargaining committee recommended fishermen accept the new offer made Saturday by association president James Sinclair. A vote will be held this week.

The offer is for last year's minimum prices for all species except coho, which would be a half-cent higher, and fall chums caught north of Cape Caution, which would be two cents higher. It also calls for increase in the salmon welfare fund guarantee by $5,000 to $50,000.

The previous offer included a sliding scale for sockeye which would gear the price to the size of the pack. This was rejected by the bargaining committee as unacceptable.

Prices for coho, pinks, summer and fall chums averaged two cents a pound lower than last year's prices; and were similarly rejected.

Both the union and the association have predicted big catches this year following three poor seasons.

If the latest offer is rejected in a ballot this week, the strike would be on again and shoreworkers would refuse to handle net-caught salmon after Sunday.

Baby Traded for Truck,
Parents To Be Charged

TULSA, Okla. (AP)—A young

Pennsylvania couple were in jail here Sunday for swapping their five-month-old son for a pickup

Police said they would probably charge Richard Readdy, 26, and his wife Helene Margaret, 20, with child abandonment today.

Mrs. Readdy told a jail matron that she is one month pregnant.

Officers said the couple admitted trading their infant boy to Jesse Lester Burger, 42, of El Dorado Springs, Mo., for the truck Friday night.

Burger also was in jail. Officers said he too may be charged as a conspirator in the transaction.

CHILD AT SHELTER

The boy, Paul Andrew

Readdy, is being cared for at the Tulsa juvenile shelter. Police said they have verified from the West Grove, Pa., hospital that he is the child of Mr. and Mrs. Readdy, born last March 18.

Detective W. J. Cotton said Burger, his wife and seven-year-old daughter picked up the Readdys near Joplin, Mo., while en route to Tulsa.

The Readdys said they were hitch-hiking to California where the husband hoped to find work.

"We stopped at a cafe to eat and in a kidding way I said I'd like to have that baby," police quoted Burger as saying.

"Readdy said, 'Boy, you sure could have it. And his wife agreed.'"

Mrs. Readdy said it was Burger who urged the trade. She said he "kept saying how the baby would be better off with them than with us."

Chinatown Show Smash Hit

By HUMPHRY DAVY

Victoria's Chinese Canadians Saturday revived some of their ancient and colorful customs for some 10,000 spectators who jammed downtown streets for Chinatown's gala centennial celebrations.

It was the biggest and most spectacular show the Chinese community has staged in years. They brought out their twin celestial dragons, symbol of purity, beauty and power. They set off over 50,000 firecrackers to drive away evil spirits who hover and haunt mortals.

And they staged an eye-popping fireworks display which thrilled thousands.

Downtown streets were lined five-deep for the parade, which included the Chinese girls' drill team, children, pioneer members of the Chinese community, the

twin dragons, a lion, gong-ring-ers and drummers.

Two of the oldest members in the parade were Lee Gum, 92, and Lowe Moon, 94. They were both attired in traditional Chinese dress.

The youngest were wee boys and girls carrying bright-colored lanterns—as they did years ago when city streets were dimly lit. Spectators also got a glimpse of Lee Gan, president of the Chinese Benevolent Association, one of the most respected members of the Chinese community.

The twin dragons, one gold and one silver, danced and pranced along the street to the joy and amusement of hundreds of Victoria children. They played and followed a red ball, representing a flaming pearl containing the essence of purity, beauty and power.

According to Chinese legend, the pearl (soul) is usually kept inside the dragon, but when it is in a playful mood, the deity blows the pearl out and plays with it.

False Lure Followed

The wise men explain it is an indirect way of telling mortals that each and everyone contain a pearl within themselves. But most men, like blockheads, keep chasing the flaming pearl all their lives.

After the parade, Fisgard Street in the heart of the Chinese business community, became a bit of the Orient. The entire block, decorated with Chinese lanterns, was jammed with spectators.

Chinese songs and music were heard from a loudspeaker attached to a balcony.

Then thousands upon thousands of firecrackers were set off in a roped-off section of the street. The noise was deafening.

A four-foot high box of pyrotechnics accidentally caught fire and for a moment caused some concern. Cracks exploded in all directions and a 20-foot flame shot skyward.

Crowds reeled backwards in near panic.

It is estimated that more than 50,000 firecrackers were set off. The street from curb to curb was covered in red cracks one-inch in depth.

The fireworks display was different from any ever staged in Victoria. The displays were in the form of tableaux, each emphasizing a theme or scene. A tableau was hoisted above the street on a cable and then set fire. In a moment it became a flaming picture.

Birds spun around, fountains poured forth showers of stars, fish chased each other and dragons spouted flames from their mouths.

The last tableau featured a picture of the Queen which was followed by a small choir of Chinese school children singing God Save the Queen.

The festival was mainly organized by the younger generation of Chinese Canadians. These included Jack Lee, president of the Chinese Centennial committee; Peter Wong and Bessie Tang, vice-presidents, and Ed Lum.

Stenos Accused Of $20,000 Theft

SYDNEY, N.S. (CP) — Two stenographers were charged Saturday with falsifying records in the disappearance of more than $20,000 from Durable Tire Retreaders Limited here. Jean MacNeil, 29, and Eleanor Tomko, 19, were released on $5,000 bail. Detectives recovered $5,400 buried in two cans in a house under construction.

BIG ATTRACTION for children at Chinatown's centennial parade Saturday was dragon dance. Hundreds of Buddha fans were sold along parade route so that spectators could fan fun-loving Chinese deity. Fanning a dragon brings good luck, according to old legend. The dragons, imported from Hong Kong, were made of silk. They danced and pranced to the sound of drums and gongs under the direction of Barry Lang and Yat King Chow. (Photo by J. V. Svendsen.)

Fishboat Holed, Towed to Tofino

TOFINO — A 40-foot troller was towed to this west coast island community Saturday after being holed when it struck Sea Otter Rock near the Lennard Island lighthouse.

The Lee W.K. was taken in tow by the Tofino lifeboat, under coxswain Einar R. Hagelin, escorted by the vessel Zodiac, skippered by owner Ian MacLeod.

The Lee W.K. is owned and captained by Axel Talko. It was the second call for assistance for the department of transport lifeboat here in 24 hours.

The boat answered a call Friday to assist the American troller Opal L., which developed engine trouble 10 miles off Estevan Point.

The lifeboat took the troller in tow at 7 p.m. and was relieved after 37 miles by the U.S. Coastguard at midnight.

The disabled vessel was taken to Neah Bay, Wash.

PROMISE GIVEN OF PROTECTION FOR GAME FISH

NANAIMO—President Ted Barsby of the B.C. Federation of Fish and Game Associations says he has been assured by Lands Minister Ray Williston that the provincial government intends to protect game fish.

Mr. Barsby told the Nanaimo Fish and Game Protective Association that no dam shall be constructed on the Fraser River which will hinder or harm fish, and that the government has no plans for construction of dams on any salmon river in the province.

He said the government is making every attempt to secure quick settlement concerning development of power on the Columbia River.

SPECTATORS loudly cheered these two men, Lee Gum, 92, and Lowe Moon, 94, the Chinese community's oldest residents. They rode in decorated car attired in old Chinese dress worn by men in the days of Old Victoria. About 10,000 persons saw spectacular parade, the largest held by community in years.

SOMMERS DEFENCE OVER;
GRAY WILL NOT TESTIFYFour Killed
In Smashes

Three persons were killed Sunday in two up-Island car accidents.

Dead are:
Jagtar Singh, about 20, of New Westminster, killed in a crash at Lake Cowichan.

Munsha Singh Kangniwal, about 30, of Mesachie Lake, killed in the same accident.

Robert McClelland, 39, South Wellington, who was hurled from his car to the bed of a creek 150 feet below the highway.

The tragedies brought to four the number of up-Island traffic deaths over the weekend. On Saturday, Rolande Gagne, 17, of Port Alberni was killed when the car in which she was riding skidded and overturned 2½ miles from her home.

Jagtar Singh was killed about 7.15 p.m. Sunday when a car he was in hit a guard rail and crashed into a power pole on the outskirts of Lake Cowichan, 17 miles west of Duncan.

Pronounced dead on arrival at King's Daughters' Hospital in Duncan was Munsha Singh Kangniwal who was in the same car. Police declined to name the driver.

Seriously injured in the crash was Laik Singh of New Westminster, owner of the car, and Kartar Singh Bhangu, Mesachie Lake.

Both the Mesachie Lake men were employees of Hillcrest Lumber Co.

INDIA DAY FESTIVAL

The accident followed day-long celebrations of India's independence day held annually at the lake and attended by East Indians from the Island and mainland.

A similar accident occurred Aug. 14, 1955, when Victoria businessman Himat Singh Gill, 32, was killed when a car in which he was riding hit a stump by the road while he was en route to celebrations at the lake.

Robert McClelland of South Wellington was hurled from his light truck early Sunday when the vehicle struck a guard rail at Boulder Creek on Nanaimo River Road six miles south of Nanaimo.

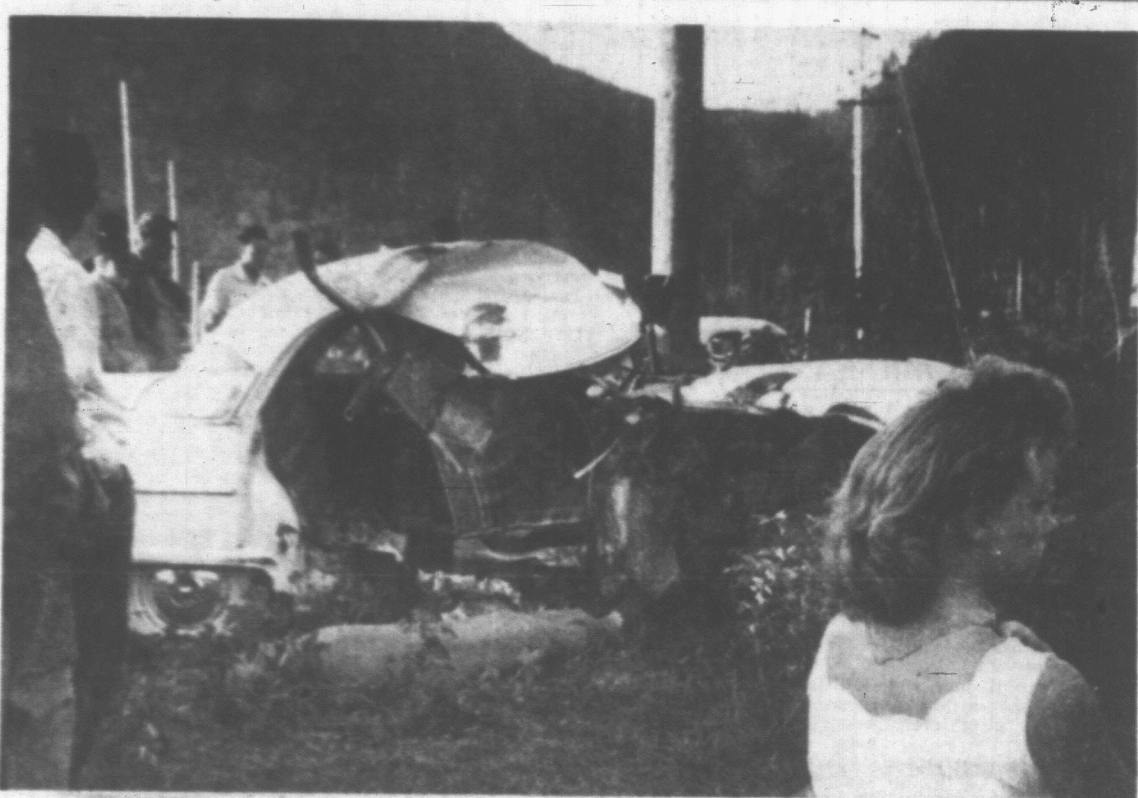

He was thrown out of the car and fell 150 feet to the rocks below. The body was found about 1 a.m. The car was going south at the time.

The victim was married and had two children.

Rolande Gagne was a passenger in a car owned by Ferdinand Whittmeir, another occupant.

Miss Gagne was returning home after taking her mother to Nanaimo, where she caught the ferry to Vancouver. The car overturned on the highway 2½ miles from Alberni. An inquest opened Saturday and was adjourned until 7.30 p.m. Aug. 15.

Funeral will be held in Notre Dame Church, Alberni, Tuesday at 10 a.m., with Rev. Wilfred Brazeau officiating. Burial will be in the Roman Catholic cemetery. Survivors include her parents and sister and a brother, Marcel.

CRUMPLED DEATH CAR

Two persons died Sunday when this late model car hit a power pole on outskirts of Lake Cowichan. Two other occupants were seriously injured. They were returning from Mesachie Lake after attending celebrations marking India's independence day. On-the-spot photo was taken by Bali Kudra of Victoria.

NEW YORK (AP)—Taking advantage of a patrolman's transfer, burglars took jewelry valued at $163,300 Sunday from two display windows of Tiffany and Company, famed jewelry store on Fifth Avenue.

Police said the gems were snatched about 20 minutes after the policeman assigned to the Tiffany area was transferred to Idlewild Airport to form part of a heavy guard for the arrival of Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko.

Island Forest
Closure Looms
In New Threat

Danger of new forest closures on Vancouver Island and the lower mainland became real again today as forestry officials scanned reports of drying weather and new fire outbreaks.

"If it continues to dry in the woods, and new fires of the man-made variety occur, then we would have little alternative but to close the forests again," a department spokesman said at noon.

Foresters had hoped for a weekend storm which didn't materialize. Sunday there was intense drying.

A light rain fell Saturday in some areas, but it didn't penetrate the canopy of the trees.

The general outlook for the district is continued drying weather and possible thunderstorms. In the Victoria area there should be continued sunny weather for the balance of today and Tuesday, with occasional cloudy spells.

Weekend fire results were considered "not bad" by forestry officials.

There were only two new fires in Vancouver Fire District, but 50 are still burning and 410 men are employed. A fire near Harrison Lake is "not yet contained" and a new fire near Chilliwack Lake is spreading.

At Battle Lake, mopping-up operations are underway. Described as "a long dirty job" these include grubbing out smoldering fires for wetting down and breaking open snags to find the last sparks.

Prince Rupert district has one new fire, 64 burning, 354 men employed; Prince George, three new, 62 burning, 470 men; Kamloops, 13 new, 74 burning, 124 men; Nelson, 18 new, 41 burning and 533 men on the fire lines.

Princess Says Goodbye
On National TV Tonight

HALIFAX (CP)—Princess Margaret's departure from Canada tonight has been set back an hour and 45 minutes to allow her to make a nationwide television and radio broadcast before she attends a farewell state dinner here.

Originally the Princess was to board a British Overseas Airways plane at Shearwater Airport at 6 p.m. PDT. The new departure time is 7.45 p.m. PDT.

First plans called for her to broadcast to the nation after the dinner. Tour officials said to board a British Overseas Airways plane at Shearwater Airport at 6 p.m. PDT. The new departure time is 7.45 p.m. PDT.

Princess Margaret has finally broken with Group Capt. Peter Townsend over a forthcoming book written by one of his friends, the Sunday newspaper The People reports.

The newspaper says in a front-page story that "the Princess has let it be known that any further approaches from him would be unwelcome."

It says the "cause of the final breach between them is a book that is to be published shortly telling the whole story of their love affair."

The People adds: "It has been written by a journalist named Norman Barrymore, a close friend of Peter Townsend, and Princess Margaret naturally takes strong exception to the disclosures" that are promised.

Members of Princess Margaret's touring household and her press spokesman said in Halifax they had no comment on the London report.

The Princess, now 27, renounced marriage to the divorced group captain, 16 years her senior, in October, 1955.

The People reports the Princess has reason to know what is in the book because Townsend showed her some extracts from it at their last meeting in Clarence House, London, 10 weeks ago.

The newspaper adds: "It was no doubt Townsend's intention to prove to her that the book was in the best possible taste. But that was not the view taken by the Princess."

broadcast before dinner so she could relax during the meal.

The broadcast is timed for 4.30 p.m. PDT, and is expected to run about eight or nine minutes.

Margaret combined with a Halifax Natal Day celebration arts festival today to draw the largest crowds this city has seen since VE Day.

Police estimated between 50,000 and 60,000 persons crowded the Halifax common and adjacent streets to see the Princess at the Natal Day parade.

Police estimate between 20,000 and 30,000 crowded the slopes

Bribery Trial
Until Aug. 25

VANCOUVER (CP)—The defence rested its case today and the marathon Sommers bribery-conspiracy trial was adjourned until Aug. 25.

J. R. Nicholson, counsel for H. Wilson Gray, Pacific Coast Services Limited and Evergreen Lumber Sales, said that in view of the evidence given by three other accused, he felt it was not necessary to call other evidence on behalf of his clients.

This means that Wilson Gray, described by the Crown as a "kingpin" in the alleged bribery-conspiracy, will not take the stand to testify in his own defence.

The three other individuals accused, former lands and forests minister Robert Sommers, Charles D. Schultz and John Gray, have completed testimony in their own defence.

Assistant prosecutor Stewart McMorran immediately informed the court the Crown had no rebuttal to offer.

ADDRESSES NEXT

The battery of defence lawyers will begin their addresses to the jury when the case resumes in two weeks' time.

Mr. Justice J. O. Wilson—who earlier had promised the jury a week off beginning Aug. 18—said the development will mean that they will get two weeks.

He warned them again to be careful about discussing the trial with anyone and said: "If anyone makes a real approach to you, I expect you to report it to me."

The justice advised the jurors to "come back strong," because they would have a lot of oratory to listen to in the remainder of the trial.

Charged besides Sommers and the other three individuals are the C. D. Schultz Company Limited, the Pacific and Evergreen firms and B.C. Forest Products Limited.

The prosecution charges that he got a split of bribe monies paid by certain firms for use of his influence in obtaining government timber licences.

Russia Wants UN
To Get Troops Out

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (CP)—Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko and 75 helpers prepared today for a drive to get the United Nations General Assembly's emergency session to demand withdrawal of U.S. troops from Lebanon and British troops from Jordan.

Gromyko was expected to speak early in the general debate, which starts Wednesday. He said on his arrival from Moscow Sunday that the Soviet government considers the question of the withdrawals "very serious" and his delegation "will do their best . . . to achieve positive results."

Asian members were reported seeking some means of inducing the Western powers to pull their troops out quickly so the assembly could concentrate on other Middle Eastern problems.

Diplomatic sources said Burma, Ceylon, India and Indonesia are seeking to bring the 28-country Asian-African group to a common policy on the withdrawal question. The group holds the balance of power in the 81-power assembly, where a two-thirds vote is needed for any major decisions.

Murder Suspect
Seen by RCMP
Near Penticton

PENTICTON, B.C. (CP)—RCMP are positive they had a fleeting glimpse during the weekend of the man who has eluded police-led posses throughout the southern Okanagan for the last seven days.

The search for Donald Stevens, charged with wounding an RCMP corporal at a road-block set up following the slaying of a woman fruit picker, was narrowed Sunday to the heavily-wooded Green Mountain area 10 miles west of here.

Stevens was sighted by a three-man squad of RCMP on a winding dirt road between here and Keremeos, 20 miles to the southwest. But their quarry disappeared into the dense scrub timber that flanks the road.

Stevens was carrying a rifle over his shoulder, police said. He was previously thought to be armed with an automatic pistol.

CONSTABLE WOUNDED

Stevens is charged in a warrant with wounding Cpl. Ralph Brown of the RCMP at a road block thrown up after the slaying of Anita Budde, 28, a week ago Sunday in her fruit picker's shack at the nearby Kaleden orchard where she had been working.

Following the sighting, a farm house off the road was broken into. Aeneas Orland reported bacon, eggs and flour were stolen Saturday night from his home.

Police patrol cars manned by three-man squads are hidden along the road, camouflaged with tree boughs and bushes.

People and Things

NICE, France — Sir Winston Churchill is living it up on his Riviera vacation. Sunday he boarded the Christina, a yacht owned by millionaire Aristotele Onassis, in Monaco harbor and lunched with film star Greta Garbo. Onassis and his wife also invited Churchill's Riviera host, Lord Beaverbrook.

of Citadel Hill Sunday night to see the Princess make a 15-minute call at an outdoor concert by an arts festival massed choir.

When she drove off the crowd swarmed down the hill and surrounded the car. One policeman said the crowd was so big "a regiment couldn't have stopped them."

They stopped the royal car for a full minute before police could clear a passage. Children clung to the sides and shouted "Hi" to the princess. She smiled through it all and appeared unperturbed.

The princess stepped down from the royal special train for the last time Sunday after a cross-country tour that took her from Goose Bay, Labrador, to Victoria, and back east to Halifax.

Once or twice she balked at what local officials arranged and demanded something more interesting. She seemed happiest when she was able to break away from the stuffy formality to see and talk to ordinary people at work or play.

She broke the routine several times this weekend in the Maritimes.

TALKED TO FISHERMEN

In Digby, N.S., she left her motorcade on the waterfront and walked the length of a pier to talk with grizzled scallop fishermen and see their boats.

She told Mayor Gordon Turnbull she would like to go aboard one of the boats but decided the steep ramp leading down to it wasn't made for high-heeled shoes.

That was the only way to get to the boats, the mayor told her. The princess smiled and said:

"I could sit down and slide down the ramp. I could slide down the handrail. Or I could climb down the stairway."

She talked with the grand old man of the fleet, Capt. Rollie Wormell, 82. He slyly reached in his pocket, pulled out a handkerchief, polished two rare blue-colored scallop shells and gave them to her. "They're royal blue," he said.

BALKS AT GUARD

The Princess balked at Camp Gagetown, N.B., when army brass called for her to inspect still another guard of honor, a chore she performed dutifully dozens of times across Canada. "Oh, not another guard of honor," she is reported to have said. "Isn't there something more exciting?"

and George Schlee, a friend of Miss Garbo. Following lunch, Churchill stayed on to play cards with Miss Garbo, Schlee, Onassis and Mrs. Onassis. A crowd of curious watching from the shore said Churchill smoked five cigars during the afternoon.

KAMPALA, Uganda (UPI) — A Kampala policeman won a promotion for bringing to heel a thief who jumped into the Nile and started swimming away.

Two other policemen jumped in after the thief, but the third cop just stood at the water's edge and shouted: "Look out! Crocodile!"

The frightened thief scrambled out of the water into the arms of the policeman.

MOSCOW — Brig. Sir John Hunt, who led the British mountaineering team that climbed Mt. Everest in 1953, reports he nearly lost his life while climbing in the Caucasus with a British-Soviet group. A snowbridge collapsed and left him dangling on a rope. His companions hauled him to safety.

AUCKLAND — Sir Edmund Hillary, conqueror of Mt. Everest, has applied for permission from an unidentified foreign government to launch a new expedition in 1960, he admitted today.

Hillary refused to say where his new attack on nature would take place, saying, "I've taken the initial steps, but it still is too early to disclose my plans."

Hillary plans to return to the Antarctic next summer.

DUNOON, Scotland — The Queen, visiting Dunoon with Prince Philip, today was presented with a traditional red rose from the Duke of Argyll as "rent" paid to the sovereign for Inverary Castle, his home on the Firth of Clyde.

The duke, hereditary chief of the Campbell clan and master of the royal household in Scotland, is at present in Athens and the rose, cut this morning in the castle gardens, was offered on his behalf by the captain of Dunstaffnage.

It was the first opportunity for the "rose rent" to be presented since 1563 when Mary Queen of Scots visited Dunoon before the union of England and Scotland.

LONDON — Robin Douglas-Horne today quit the executive's job he took when his romance with Sweden's Princess Margaret was flowering.

Douglas-Horne, 25, is going back to playing the piano—this time at a resort hotel on the French Riviera.

It was in a plush London cocktail lounge 18 months ago that he first met the 23-year-old princess. He was playing the piano there at the time. He threw aside music and took the publishing job to better his prospects for marrying Margaret. But the romance fell through.

Why I Support Community Chest

TODAY: MRS. EDWARD BRAND, RESTAURATEUR.

"Well put it this way. I am behind the Chest because it does things for people. Good things, permanent things that make big important differences in their lives. Things that count."

"The Chest is worthwhile. Everything it does means that somebody is going to benefit. It would be wrong not to support an organization like that, wouldn't it? But there are other reasons I believe in the Chest."

"As a businesswoman, I like the way the Chest is efficient. It cuts corners. It saves time. It wraps up all the charities in one."

"Anyone who has done any canvassing—and I have—will know how much time he or she must spend going to houses and collecting from all kinds of people. It's a big job for just one charity, but when you multiply the time by 20, which is the number of organizations in this year's Chest, it adds up to

TALKS TODAY ON LUMBERING WAGE DISPUTE

Talks were scheduled to continue in Vancouver today in a wage dispute between coast lumber operators and officials of the 28,000-member International Woodworkers of America.

Royal commissioner Gordon Sloan said Friday exploratory talks had already taken place, but declined further comment.

Mr. Sloan, forestry adviser to the provincial government, was appointed as a one-man royal commission to settle the dispute after the forest workers voted June 27 to strike.

Intermunicipal Group to Study BCE Bus Set-Up

Full scale study of two complications in the B.C. Electric application for bus fare increases was scheduled for today by the Greater Victoria intermunicipal committee.

Committee members, plus any members of the four councils who wished to attend, were to discuss:

1. Possible sale of the entire BCE transit operation to two Vancouver men backed by British interests.
2. A Public Utilities Commission suggestion that the municipalities subsidize bus operations by reducing or eliminating the 3 per cent charge on bus revenue to offset road maintenance costs on bus routes.

BCE officials W. C. Mearns, vice-president in charge of V.I. operations, E. A. M. Patterson, company solicitor, H. R. Halls, transit manager, and Mark Trueman, operations manager, were to attend the meeting to bring the civic leaders up to date on an announcement last week that the Vancouver and

Gen. Manning said his company would not seek further increases if it takes over the operation "provided the PUC

Up-Island Homes Menaced by Fire

SHAWNIGAN LAKE—A 40-acre bush fire which for a time threatened nearby homes here Saturday was brought under control after a seven-hour battle by the Shawnigan Lake Volunteer Fire Department and firefighters of the forestry department.

The blaze ate its way to within a quarter mile of residences on the east side of the lake.

The fire was noticed at about 3.30 p.m. and had burned over an acre, mostly E & N Railway property, by then. An E & N tank car assisted in fighting the blaze.

Despite the extremely dry weather, it was the first major fire outbreak in the Shawnigan Lake area this season.

Some delay was experienced by firefighters due to the long distance fire lines had to be laid, about a quarter mile from the lake to the scene of the outbreak.

Forestry officials were still watching the fire site today.

Chinatown Show Smash Hit

By HUMPHRY DAVY

Victoria's Chinese Canadians Saturday revived some of their ancient and colorful customs for some 10,000 spectators who jammed downtown streets for Chinatown's gala centennial celebrations.

It was the biggest and most spectacular show the Chinese community has staged in years.

They brought out their twin celestial dragons, symbol of purity, beauty and power.

They set off over 50,000 firecrackers to drive away evil spirits who hover and haunt mortals.

And they staged an eye-popping fireworks display which thrilled thousands.

Downtown streets were lined five-deep for the parade, which included the Chinese girls' drill team, children, pioneer members of the Chinese community, the

twin dragons, a lion, gong-ring-ers and drummers.

Two of the oldest members in the parade were Lee Gum, 92, and Lowe Moon, 94. They were both attired in traditional Chinese dress.

The youngest were wee boys and girls carrying bright-colored lanterns—as they did years ago when city streets were dimly lit.

Spectators also got a glimpse of Lee Gan, president of the Chinese Benevolent Association, one of the most respected members of the Chinese community.

The twin dragons, one gold and one silver, danced and pranced along the street to the joy and amusement of hundreds of Victoria children. They played and followed a red ball, representing a flaming pearl containing the essence of purity, beauty and power.

According to Chinese legend, the pearl (soul) is usually kept inside the dragon, but when it is in a playful mood, the deity blows the pearl out and plays with it.

False Lure Followed

The wise men explain it is an indirect way of telling mortals that each and everyone contain a pearl within themselves. But most men, like blockheads, keep chasing the flaming pearl all their lives.

After the parade, Fisgard Street in the heart of the Chinese business community, became a bit of the Orient. The entire block, decorated with Chinese lanterns, was jammed with spectators.

Chinese songs and music were heard from a loudspeaker attached to a balcony.

Then thousands upon thousands of firecrackers were set off in a roped-off section of the street. The noise was deafening.

A four-foot high box of pyrotechnics accidentally caught fire and for a moment caused some concern. Cracks exploded in all directions and a 20-foot flame shot skyward.

Crowds reeled backwards in near panic.

It is estimated that more than 50,000 firecrackers were set off. The street from curb to curb was covered in red cracker one-inch in depth.

The fireworks display was different from any ever staged in Victoria. The displays were in the form of tableaux, each emphasizing a theme or scene. A tableau was hoisted above the street on a cable and then set fire. In a moment it became a flaming picture.

Birds spun around, fountains poured forth showers of stars, fish chased each other and dragons spouted flames from their mouths.

The last tableau featured a picture of the Queen which was followed by a small choir of Chinese school children singing God Save the Queen.

These included Jack Lee, president of the Chinese Centennial committee; Peter Wong and Bessie Tang, vice-presidents, and Ed Lum.

Stenos Accused Of $20,000 Theft

SYDNEY, N.S. (CP) — Two stenographers were charged Saturday with falsifying records in the disappearance of more than $20,000 from Durable Tire Retreaders Limited here. Jean MacNeil, 29, and Eleanor Tomko, 19, were released on $5,000 bail. Detectives recovered $5,400 buried in two cans in a house under construction.

BIG ATTRACTION for children at Chinatown's centennial parade Saturday was dragon dance. Hundreds of Buddha fans were sold along parade route so that spectators could fan fun-loving Chinese deity. Fanning a dragon brings good luck, according to old legend. The dragons, imported from Hong Kong, were made of silk. They danced and pranced to the sound of drums and gongs under the direction of Barry Lang and Yat-King Chow. (Photo by J. V. Svendsen.)

Fishboat Holed, Towed to Tofino

TOFINO — A 40-foot trawler was towed to this west coast island community Saturday after being holed when it struck Sea Otter Rock near the Lennard Island lighthouse.

The Lee W.K. was taken in tow by the Tofino lifeboat, under coxswain Einar R. Hagelin, escorted by the vessel Zodiak, skippered by owner Ian MacLeod.

The Lee W.K. is owned and captained by Axel Talko.

It was the second call for assistance for the department of transport lifeboat here in 24 hours.

The boat answered a call Friday to assist the American trawler Opal L which developed engine trouble 10 miles off Estevan Point.

The disabled vessel was taken to Neah Bay, Wash.

PROMISE GIVEN OF PROTECTION FOR GAME FISH

NANAIMO—President Ted Barsby of the B.C. Federation of Fish and Game Associations says he has been assured by Lands Minister Ray Williston that the provincial government intends to protect game fish.

Mr. Barsby told the Nanaimo Fish and Game Protective Association that no dam shall be constructed on the Fraser River which will hinder or harm fish, and that the government has no plans for construction of dams on any salmon river in the province.

He said the government is making every attempt to secure quick settlement concerning development of power on the Columbia River.

World Record Chum Of 36 Pounds Claimed

PETERSBURG, Alaska (AP) — A 36-pound chum salmon, claimed the largest of its species ever caught, was taken from a fish trap near here last week.

T. F. Smith, agent with the U.S. Bureau of Commercial Fisheries, said no chum weighing more than 30 pounds has ever been listed.

SPECTATORS loudly cheered these two men, Lee Gum, 92, and Lowe Moon, 94, the Chinese community's oldest residents.

About 10,000 persons saw spectacular parade, the largest held by community in years.

Russ Seek UN Order For Troop Withdrawals

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (CP)—Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko and 75 helpers prepared today for a drive to get the United Nations General Assembly's emergency session to demand withdrawal of U.S. troops from Lebanon and British troops from Jordan.

Gromyko was expected to speak early in the general debate, which starts Wednesday. He said on his arrival from Moscow Sunday that the Soviet government considers the question of the withdrawals "very serious" and his delegation "will do their best... to achieve positive results."

Asian members were reported seeking some means of inducing the Western powers to pull their troops out quickly so the assembly could concentrate on other Middle Eastern problems.

Diplomatic sources said Burma, Ceylon, India and Indonesia

are seeking to bring the 28-country Asian-African group to a common policy on the withdrawal question. The group holds the balance of power in the 81-power assembly, where a two-thirds vote is needed for any major decisions.

PLAN UNDER FIRE

Asian delegates at the UN picked holes in the Middle East plan proposed by Secretary-General Dag Hammarskjöld Friday.

It calls for (1) A pledge by Arab countries of mutual non-interference, (2) big-power agreement not to interfere in the Arab countries, (3) general co-operation for Middle East economic development and (4) UN protection for Jordan, Lebanon and the Israel-U.A.R. frontier.

Asians contended it would hamper expansion of U.A.R. influence while leaving untouched the Baghdad Pact alliance on the southern Soviet border, the British hold on the southern and eastern Arabian coast, and French rule over Algeria, not to mention Israel.

The United States is reported planning to propose a police force to protect threatened countries, a watchdog commission to monitor propaganda broadcasts, an investigating commission to recommend long-range solutions, and an economic plan, all under the UN.

Gromyko said on arrival in New York the big powers must help in economic development of the Middle East "under conditions that will not interfere with the independence of these countries."

Hammarskjöld met with Norman Robertson, Canadian ambassador to Washington, as he began a heavy schedule of conferences today to prepare for the General Assembly debate.

This afternoon Hammarskjöld planned to see a consultative group set up last month to help him develop plans for the UN observer operation in Lebanon.

TIFFANY'S LOOTED

Gem Thieves Strike Twice For $263,000

TORONTO (CP)—Diamond merchant Elias Friedman reported to police today he was robbed of $263,000 in diamonds after being bound and gagged by two men in his office on downtown Dundas Square.

Police said the robbery occurred just after Mr. Friedman opened his office after bringing the diamonds from a vault in the Imperial Bank of Canada.

NEW YORK (AP)—Taking advantage of a patrolman's transfer, burglars took jewelry valued at $263,000 Sunday from two display windows of Tiffany and Company, famed jewelry store on Fifth Avenue.

Police said the gems were smashed about 20 minutes after the policeman assigned to the Tiffany area was transferred to Hillview Airport to form part of a heavy guard for the arrival of Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko.

STERLINGTON, N.Y. (AP) — Two Erie Railroad passenger trains collided head-on today, killing five persons and injuring at least 22 others. The accident occurred when one train missed orders to wait for the other to get off its track.

Gray Will Not Go on Stand At Bribe Trial

Defence Rests Case; Adjourned Two Weeks

VANCOUVER (CP) — The defence rested its case today and the marathon Sommers bribery-conspiracy trial was adjourned until Aug. 25.

J. R. Nicholson, counsel for H. Wilson Gray, Pacific Coast Services Limited and Evergreen Lumber Sales, said that in view of the evidence given by three other accused, he felt it was not necessary to call other evidence on behalf of his clients.

This means that Wilson Gray, described by the Crown as a "kingpin" in the alleged bribery-conspiracy, will not take the stand to testify in his own defence.

The three other individuals accused, former lands and forests minister Robert Sommers, Charles D. Schultz and John Gray, have completed testimony in their own defence.

ADDRESSES NEXT

The battery of defence lawyers will begin their addresses to the jury when the case resumes in two weeks' time.

Mr. Justice J. O. Wilson—who earlier had promised the jury a week off beginning Aug. 18—said the development will mean that they will get two weeks.

He warned them again to be careful about discussing the trial with anyone and said: "If anyone makes a real approach to you, I expect you to report it to me."

The justice advised the jurors to "come back strong" because they would have a lot of oratory to listen to in the remainder of the trial.

Charged besides Sommers and the other three individuals are the C. D. Schultz Company Limited, the Pacific and Evergreen firms and B.C. Forest Products Limited.

The prosecution charges that he got a split of bribe monies paid by certain firms for use of his influence in obtaining government timber licences.

Murder Suspect Seen by RCMP Near Penticton

PENTICTON, B.C. (CP) — RCMP are positive they had a fleeting glimpse during the weekend of the man who has eluded police-led posses throughout the southern Okanagan for the last seven days.

The search for Donald Stevens, charged with wounding an RCMP corporal at a road block set up following the slaying of a woman fruit picker, was narrowed Sunday to a heavily wooded Green Mountain area 10 miles west of here.

Stevens was sighted by a three-man squad of RCMP on a winding dusty road between here and Keremeos, 20 miles to the southwest. But their quarry disappeared into the dense scrub timber that flanks the road.

Stevens was carrying a rifle over his shoulder, police said. He was previously thought to be armed with an automatic pistol.

CONSTABLE WOUNDED

Stevens is charged in a warrant with wounding Cpl. Ralph Brown of the RCMP at a road block thrown up after the slaying of Anita Budde, 28, a week ago Sunday in her fruit picker's shack at the nearby Kaledon orchard where she had been working.

Following the sighting, a farm house off the road was broken into. Aeneas Orland reported bacon, eggs and flour were stolen Saturday night from his home.

Three Separate Fatal Mishaps During Weekend

Three persons were killed Sunday in two up-Island car accidents.

Dead are:

Jagatar Singh, about 20, of New Westminster, killed in a crash at Lake Cowichan.

Munsha Singh Kangniwal, about 30, of Mesachie Lake, killed in the same accident.

Robert McClelland, 39, South Wellington, who was hurled from his car to the bed of a creek 150 feet below the highway.

The tragedies brought to four the number of up-Island traffic deaths over the weekend. On Saturday, Rolande Gagne, 17, of Port Alberni was killed when the car in which she was riding skidded and overturned 2½ miles from her home.

Jagatar Singh was killed about 7:15 p.m. Sunday when a car he was in hit a guard rail and crashed into a power pole on the outskirts of Lake Cowichan, 17 miles west of Duncan.

Pronounced dead on arrival at King's Daughters' Hospital in Duncan was Munsha Singh Kangniwal who was in the same car. Police declined to name the driver.

Seriously injured in the crash was Laik Singh of New Westminster, owner of the car, and Kartar Singh Bhangu, Mesachie Lake.

Both the Mesachie Lake men were employees of Hillcrest Lumber Co.

INDIA DAY FESTIVAL

The accident followed day-long celebrations of India's independence day held annually at the lake and attended by East Indians from the Island and mainland.

A similar accident occurred Aug. 14, 1955, when Victoria businessman Himat Singh Gill, 32, was killed when a car in which he was riding hit a stump by the road while he was en route to celebrations at the lake.

Robert McClelland of South Wellington was hurled from his light truck early Sunday when the vehicle struck a guard rail at Boulder Creek on Nanaimo River Road six miles south of Nanaimo.

He was thrown out of the car and fell 150 feet to the rocks below. The body was found about 1 a.m. The car was going south at the time.

The victim was married and had two children. Rolande Gagne was a passenger in a car owned by Ferdinand Whittmeir, another occupant.

Miss Gagne was returning home after taking her mother to Nanaimo, where she caught the ferry to Vancouver. The car overturned on the highway 2½ miles from Alberni. An inquest opened Saturday and was adjourned until 7:30 p.m. Aug. 15.

Funeral will be held in Notre Dame Church, Alberni, Tuesday at 10 a.m., with Rev. Wilfred Brazeau officiating. Burial will be in the Roman Catholic cemetery. Survivors include her parents and sister and a brother, Marcel.

Summit 'Descent' Blamed on West

MOSCOW (CP)—Soviet Premier Khrushchev today blamed the United States and Britain for shifting discussion of the Middle East from a summit meeting to the UN General Assembly.

In a letter to Prime Minister Macmillan, Khrushchev denied that he and the Soviet Union backed down from a summit meeting within the Security Council.

The letter, released today, in effect charged the U.S. and Britain with trying to stage a loaded session of the UN that would justify their "aggressive action" in the Near and Middle East.

Macmillan, in a note to Khrushchev Aug. 7, said the Soviet premier agreed to a summit meeting within the framework of the Security Council but backed down.

Khrushchev's reply denies this. He said he hoped the emergency session of the General Assembly, which begins debate Wednesday, would "cope with the tasks before it" and thus "to a considerable extent clear the way toward calling a conference of leading statesmen of the West and East."

Britain to Go Ahead On Cyprus Plan --- Mac

ANKARA, Turkey (Reuters) —Prime Minister Macmillan has told the Greek and Turkish governments that Britain intends to go ahead with her seven-year plan for Cyprus.

The prime minister expressed the hope that his four days of private talks in Athens and Ankara would lead to the restoration of peace in the violence-ridden island colony.

"I am sure this is the hope of all men of good will," he told reporters.

It is understood Macmillan found some grounds for hoping Greece and Turkey will acquiesce in the British plan—perhaps with minor alterations.

However, Greece today was reported planning to take her claim to the island of Cyprus back to the UN Assembly after apparently fruitless talks with Mr. Macmillan.

It was apparent that all three nations were holding fast to their previous positions.

On his way back to London, the prime minister stopped off in Cyprus and lunched with British military chiefs. He decided on the visit at the last moment and put off his return to London until late tonight or Tuesday morning.

Macmillan gave the Greek and Turkish premiers details of the plan and listened to their reactions. He did not ask for specific agreement from either government.

Macmillan, together with the governor of Cyprus, Sir Hugh Foot, spent 3½ hours Sunday with Turkish Premier Adnan Menderes and Foreign Minister Fatin Zorlu.

Princess Says Goodbye On National TV Tonight

HALIFAX (CP) — Princess Margaret's departure from Canada tonight has been set back an hour and 45 minutes to allow her to make a nationwide television and radio broadcast before she attends a farewell state dinner here.

Originally the Princess was to board a British Overseas Airways plane at Shearwater Airport at 6 p.m. PDT. The new departure time is 7:45 p.m. PDT.

First plans called for her to broadcast to the nation after the dinner. Tour officials said she preferred to make the broadcast before dinner so she could relax during the meal.

The broadcast is timed for 4:30 p.m. PDT, and is expected to run about eight or nine minutes.

of Citadel Hill Sunday night to see the Princess make a 15-minute call at an outdoor concert by an arts festival massed choir.

When she drove off the crowd swarmed down the hill and surrounded the car. One policeman said the crowd was so big "a regiment couldn't have stopped them."

They stopped the royal car for a full minute before police could clear a passage. Children clung to the sides and shouted "Hi" to the princess. She smiled through it all and appeared unperturbed.

The princess stepped down from the royal special train for the last time Sunday after a cross-country tour that took her from Goose Bay, Labrador, to Victoria, and back east to Halifax.

Once or twice she balked at what local officials arranged and demanded something more interesting. She seemed happiest when she was able to break away from the stuffy formality to see and talk to ordinary people at work or play.

She broke the routine several times this weekend in the Maritimes.

TALKED TO FISHERMEN

In Digby, N.S., she left her motorcade on the waterfront and walked the length of a pier to talk with grizzled scallop fishermen and see their boats.

She told Mayor Gordon Turnbull she would like to go aboard one of the boats but decided the steep ramp leading down to it wasn't made for high-heeled shoes.

That was the only way to get to the boats, the mayor told her. The princess smiled and said:

"I could sit down and slide down the ramp. I could slide down the handrail. Or I could climb down the stairway."

She talked with the grand old m: of the fleet, Capt. Rollie Wormell, 82. He shyly reached in his pocket, pulled out a handkerchief, polished two rare blue-colored scallop shells and gave them to her. "They're royal blue," he said.

BALKS AT GUARD
The Princess balked at Camp Gagetown, N.B., when army brass called for her to inspect still another guard of honor, a chore she performed dutifully dozens of times across Canada.

"Oh, not another guard of honor," she is reported to have said. "Isn't there something more exciting?"

and George Schlee, a friend of Miss Garbo.
Following lunch, Churchill stayed on to play cards with Miss Garbo, Schlee, Onassis and Mrs. Onassis. A crowd of curious watching from the shore said Churchill smoked five cigars during the afternoon.

KAMPALA, Uganda (UPI) — A Kamapala policeman won a promotion for bringing to heel a thief who jumped into the Nile and started swimming away.

Two other policemen jumped in after the thief, but the third cop just stood at the water's edge and shouted: "Look out! Crocodile!"
The frightened thief scampered out of the water into the arms of the policeman.

MOSCOW—Brig. Sir John Hunt, who led the British monowall team that climbed Mt. Everest in 1953, reports he nearly lost his life while climbing in the Caucasus with a British-Soviet group. A snowbridge collapsed and left him dangling on a rope. His companions hauled him to safety.

AUCKLAND — Sir Edmund Hillary, conqueror of Mt. Everest, has applied for permission from an unidentified foreign government to launch a new expedition in 1960, he admitted today.

Hillary refused to say where his new attack on nature would take place, saying, "I've taken the initial steps, but it still is too early to disclose my plans."

Hillary plans to return to the Antarctic next summer.

DUNOON, Scotland — The Queen, visiting Dunoon with Prince Philip, today was presented with a traditional red rose from the Duke of Argyll as "rent" paid to the sovereign for Inverary Castle, his home on the Firth of Clyde.

The duke, hereditary chief of the Campbell clan and master of the royal household in Scotland, is at present in Athens and the rose, cut this morning in the castle gardens, was offered on his behalf by the captain of Dunstaffnage.

It was the first opportunity for the "rose rent" to be presented since 1563 when Mary Queen of Scots visited Dunoon before the union of England and Scotland.

LONDON — Robin Douglas-Horne today quit the executive's job he took when his romance with Sweden's Princess Margaret was flowering.

Douglas-Horne, 25, is going back to playing the piano—this time at a resort hotel on the French Riviera.

It was in a plush London cocktail lounge 18 months ago that he first met the 23-year-old princess. He was playing the piano there at the time.

He threw aside music and took the publishing job to better his prospects for marrying Margaret. But the romance fell through.

Why I Support Community Chest

TODAY: MRS. EDWARD BRAND, RESTAURATEUR.

"Well put it this way. I am behind the Chest because it does things for people. Good things, permanent things that make big important differences in their lives. Things that count."

"The Chest is worthwhile. Everything it does means that somebody is going to benefit. It would be wrong not to support an organization like that, wouldn't it? But there are other reasons I believe in the Chest."

"As a businesswoman, I like the way the Chest is efficient. It cuts corners. It saves time. It wraps up all the charities in one."

"Anyone who has done any canvassing—and I have—will know how much time he or she must spend going to houses and collecting from all kinds of people. It's a big job for just one charity, but when you multiply the time by 20, which is the number of organizations in this year's Chest, it adds up to

TALKS TODAY ON LUMBERING WAGE DISPUTE

Talks were scheduled to continue in Vancouver today in a wage dispute between coast lumber operators and officials of the 28,000-member International Woodworkers of America.

Royal commissioner Gordon Sloan said Friday exploratory talks had already taken place, but declined further comment.

Mr. Sloan, forestry adviser to the provincial government, was appointed as a one-man royal commission to settle the dispute after the forest workers voted June 27 to strike.

Intermunicipal Group to Study BCE Bus Set-Up

Full scale study of two complications in the B.C. Electric application for bus fare increases was scheduled for today by the Greater Victoria Intermunicipal committee.

Committee members, plus any members of the four councils who wished to attend, were to discuss:

1. Possible sale of the entire BCE transit operation to two Vancouver men backed by British interests.

2. A Public Utilities Commission suggestion that the municipalities subsidize bus operations by reducing or eliminating the 3 per cent charge on bus revenue to offset road maintenance costs on bus routes.

BCE officials W. C. Mearns, vice-president in charge of V.I. operations, E. A. M. Patterson, company solicitor, H. R. Halls, transit manager, and Mark Trueman, operations manager, were to attend the meeting to bring the civic leaders up to date on an announcement last week that the Vancouver and Victoria bus systems might be sold.

The prospective purchasers are T. J. Manning, 55-year-old retired United States Army Air Force brigadier-general and transportation company tycoon now living in Vancouver, and Ivor W. Neil, retired manager of the BCE transit system.

Price tag has been suggested at around $20,000,000, to be financed by an unnamed British company. BCE bus system assets, estimated at $17,690,000 recently, are under study by auditors, Gen. Manning, one-time president of a Los Angeles transit company, said.

"We should get down to money matters (in negotiations) in a day or two," he said in Vancouver.

Both Gen. Manning and BCE officials said a decision, one way or the other, should be reached within two weeks.

Greater Victoria municipalities could block the transfer by withdrawing franchises granted BCE in 1947.

But Mayor Percy Scurrell said he did not expect any objection to the deal from city council "if the new group could provide equal or better service."

Gen. Manning, born in Omaha, Neb., who started in the transportation business there with one bus, has bought and sold several transportation companies on the west coast.

"But I intend to hang on to this one," he said. "I will be president of the company and Mr. Neil will be vice-president."

From 1925 until 1931 he was manager of the Union Pacific Stages operated by the Union Pacific Railroad Co. A year later he became head of Manning Transportation Co., in Oakland, Calif.

He relinquished control in 1943 to become vice-president of Pacific City Lines, of Oakland, rising to president the following year.

Gen. Manning was president of Los Angeles Transit Lines, Inc., from 1944 to 1948, when he moved to Chicago as vice-president of National City Lines, Inc. He acquired control of Manning Transport Lines, Inc., and Lang Transportation Co., of Los Angeles, in 1949, selling out later.

Last year he was president of Gray Lines Tours, Inc., of Seattle, president of Gray Line Avic U-Drive, Inc., and president of Tacoma Suburban Lines, Inc.

He served in the USAAF during the Second World War, attaining the rank of brigadier-general.

He moved to Vancouver last December and currently is a director of Transport Holdings, Ltd., and Lees Transport, Ltd., in that city.

Nasser 'Misled by Reds'

AMMAN, Jordan (AP)—King Hussein Sunday night accused President Nasser of serving international communism as its "first agent in the Arab world."

In a broadcast, Jordan's monarch told his people:

"Communism has made him (Nasser) a servant for its causes, has misled him and made him fill the earth with corruption and plots everywhere."

"It was the strongest attack that Hussein, who last month called in British troops to help protect his country's independence and internal stability, has ever made on the president of the United Arab Republic."

Hussein's broadcast was made on the eve of the sixth anniversary of his proclamation as king of Jordan.

BEIRUT (CP) — Pro-government irregulars fought a three-hour battle with rebels Sunday in Alta village, near the Syrian frontier, it was reported today.

Sources connected with the Syrian Social National Party said armed members of the party killed or wounded many rebels and lost one dead and two wounded on their own side.

BAGHDAD, Iraq (Reuters) — Economics Minister Ibrahim Kubhah said Saturday the new government has "no intention whatever" of nationalizing Iraq's oil industry.

"But we hope to discuss the entire question of our agreements with the Iraqi Petroleum Company, soon, including adjustments of the profit-sharing basis and disputes outstanding under the old regime," he said in an interview.

BEIRUT — The United States began distributing $5,000,000 worth of free wheat to Lebanon today.

The Lebanese minister of national economy, Khazen el Khalil, thanked the American people for the wheat, but expressed the hope that aid will not be limited to this program.

An unusually dry spring and three months of civil disorders have brought a wheat shortage.

CAIRO (AP)—The Egyptian newspapers Sunday flayed Dag Hammarskjöld's suggestions for Middle East peace and stability. They said the UN chief completely ignored the real troubles besetting the Arab world.

BEIRUT (Reuters) — Beirut storekeepers and nightclub owners were bearing up bravely today under the million-dollar "burden" of American "occupation."

The second wave of pleasure-bound troops on leave struck the city at noon and receded just before the dusk curfew.

Left behind was the tide mark of crammed tills and confused political ideals.

SKIPPER FLIES TO JOIN A-SUB

LONDON (AP)—Cmdr. W. R. Anderson, skipper of the U.S. submarine Nautilus, arrived by plane today to rejoin the ship and crew which made the historic under-ice crossing of the north pole.

Anderson flew from New York after a ceremony in Washington honoring him for the feat in the nuclear-powered sub.

The Nautilus is expected to reach Portland, some 100 miles southwest of here, Tuesday.

Up-Island Homes Menaced by Fire

SHAWNIGAN LAKE—A 40-acre bush fire which for a time threatened nearby homes here Saturday was brought under control after a seven-hour battle by the Shawnigan Lake Volunteer Fire Department and firefighters of the forestry department.

The blaze ate its way to within a quarter mile of residences on the east side of the lake.

The fire was noticed at about 3.30 p.m. and had burned over an acre, mostly E & N Railway property, by then. An E & N tank car assisted in fighting the blaze.

Despite the extremely dry weather, it was the first major fire outbreak in the Shawnigan Lake area this season.

Some delay was experienced by firefighters due to the long distance fire lines had to be laid, about a quarter mile from the lake to the scene of the outbreak.

Forestry officials were still watching the fire site today.

Atom Tests Danger To Future Health UN Group Reports

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP)—A 15-nation UN scientific committee report on the dangers of radioactivity was expected today to increase pressures for a world ban on nuclear weapon tests.

The report says that even a slow, slight increase in world radioactivity from nuclear test explosions and other sources endangers mankind's future health.

While approving a report to this effect, the committee nevertheless rejected a Soviet demand that it call for an immediate end to nuclear test explosions.

RELEASED SUNDAY

The report was released Sunday by the United Nations scientific committee on the effects of atomic radiation. More than two years of study went into preparation for the 228-page document.

The committee members agreed unanimously that even the smallest amounts of radiation are liable to cause harmful genetic and perhaps other effects such as cancer, leukemia and shortening of life.

They agreed, too, that "even a slow rise in the environmental radioactivity in the world, whether from weapon tests or any other sources, might eventually cause appreciable damage to large populations before it could be identified as due to radiation."

Unanimous too, was the conclusion that present attempts to evaluate radiation effects on man can produce only tentative estimates with wide margins of uncertainty.

CONFIRMS U.S. REPORT

The U.S. Atomic Energy Commission said the UN report generally confirms the statements in the June 1956 report of the U.S. National Academy of Sciences with respect to the possible hazards from radiation.

The majority of the committee took the view that the problem of controlling or curbing nuclear tests and other sources of radiation lies outside the group's scope.

MRS. MARGARET MORRISON

A friendly brown-eyed widow, has been calling on patients in Victoria hospitals and nursing homes ever since she came here with her husband, the late William Morrison, in 1919.

In this way she is known to hundreds of lonely men and women in the Gorge and Menzies Street nursing homes and in St. Joseph's and the Royal Jubilee hospitals.

Mrs. Morrison also visits shut-ins living in rooms and apartments and often takes them small gifts. "She is never tired of listening to other people's troubles," one elderly woman wrote of her, "and so many of us look forward to her visits." Mrs. Morrison began touring hospitals in Glasgow in 1914 and has been doing it ever since.

RABBIT LAKE, Sask. (CP)—Twin brothers were drowned Sunday in Rabbit Lake near this northeast Saskatchewan community of the same name. The other attempted to rescue his brother and both went under. Police said the twins were non-swimmers.

Summit 'Bungled' By West---Pearson

GENEVA PARK, Ont. (CP) Lester B. Pearson, Nobel Peace Prize winner and national head of the Liberal party, has accused Western diplomacy of bungling recent summit conference negotiations.

He spoke Saturday at the opening of the 27th Couchiching conference, sponsored by the Canadian Institute on Public Affairs and the Canadian Broadcasting Corporation.

Mr. Pearson, delivering the keynote address of the conference which has Crisis '58 as its theme, said Russian Premier Khrushchev, in his original invitation to the West for a five-power summit talk or Middle East problems, presented the West with an opportunity which had been frittered away and lost by a failure of diplomacy.

"Surely the three western powers would have accepted this invitation without delay. A meeting of the Security Council at the regular official level could then have been called to formalize this procedure and a small summit

Instead, through a lengthy exchange of tricky communications and public statements, the world was left with the prospects of a confused and sensational propaganda jamboree at the United Nations in New York.

RABBIT LAKE, Sask. (CP)—Twin brothers were drowned Sunday in Rabbit Lake near this northeast Saskatchewan community of the same name. RCMP said Ben and Murray Ference, 27, of Borden, Sask., were wading in the lake when one twin went beyond his depth and started to go down. The other attempted to rescue his brother and both went under. Police said the twins were non-swimmers.

Scurrah Plumps For Status Quo On Store Hours

Mayor Percy Scurrah said today he favors retention of the status quo in shop closing hours.

He took his stand in commenting on a letter from the Merchants' 51st Day Week Association listing 246 retail firms requesting no change in the present set up.

The letter was sent to City Hall "to let the mayor and council know that the great majority of retail stores in Victoria do not want the six-day week," wrote A. Bruce Humber on behalf of the organization.

May 14 city council altered previous closing regulations to allow six-day shopping June 15 to Sept. 15 and all through December.

Longshoremen's Pay Offer Vote Due Late Today

Results are expected to be known late today of a vote on a wage offer taken Friday by 1,300 R.C. members of the International Longshoremen's and Warehousemen's Union.

The union executive last week told members to reject a conciliation recommendation for a 10-cent-an-hour wage increase. They sought an extra 61 1/2 cents on a present average wage of $2.57 an hour.

A thumbs-down vote by the longshoremen would precipitate a strike affecting all deep-sea shipping in the province. Some 200 Victoria waterfront workers would be affected.

It also extended the Wednesday closing to 1 p.m. in other periods.

But council promised to review the situation in September.

"I don't know what council will do," said the mayor, "but so far as I'm concerned the status quo should be maintained."

"So far as I know the present system is working well and I don't see any reason to change it."

Another merchant group has been campaigning for six-day shopping the year around.

Ald. Geoffrey Edgell said that council will be faced with a "delicate situation" in weighing the arguments to be advanced by both sides.

He pointed out that the provincial Hours of Work Act, restricting the number of hours that employees could be required to work, had eliminated the chief reason for council's past decision to restrict shop hours.

"But the whole question still has to be weighed very carefully before any decision is made," he said.

MONTE ROBERTS

Some of the citizens of Victoria are running a temperature about the temperatures of Victoria.

These citizens claim the official temperatures, as recorded at Gonzales Heights, do not do justice to the true climate of Victoria.

They say the publication of these official temperatures, across this nation, the nation to the south of us, and the world in general, is a base canard, a snarl and a delusion, and no good, either.

The indignant citizens say it is much balmer in other parts of Victoria than it is on Gonzales Hill, where the official weatherman carries on his official business, and they add that something should be done.

I heartily concur with this sentiment. What is more, I know what should be done. It is obvious to any person with the ability to see beyond the end of his nose that temperatures are useful only for one thing.

Names, publicity. Temperatures are no use whatsoever in informing a person whether he is too cold or too hot.

The person himself knows if he is too cold or too hot. If he is too cold, he doesn't give an ice-cold lemonade for a temperature reading of 72.

He wants a temperature reading of 92, at least, and if he can't get it, he wants no temperature reading at all.

Which is exactly the point. The too-hot citizen is better off with no temperature reading.

This is true also of the too-cold citizen. Therefore, if the official temperature is of no use to either the too-hot citizen or the too-cold citizen (there is no such thing as a just-right citizen), what is left for the official temperature?

Publicity, that is what is left for the official temperature. And who is in charge of publicity around these parts? The publicity bureau is in charge of publicity.

Therefore, the publicity bureau should also be in charge of the official temperature.

If the official weatherman wishes to take the official temperature for his own amusement, let him do so. But let him keep it a secret.

The official temperature for publication purposes should be the official temperature as taken by the publicity bureau. Only the publicity bureau should have the authority to release this temperature to the newspapers, especially the out-of-town newspapers.

And, if a hot water bottle is inadvertently in juxtaposition with the publicity bureau's official thermometer, who is to complain?

Let us get this temperature business into perspective, and stop it from giving the city a bad name.

Ex-MP Wants Yukon Made Province or Part of B.C.

By NORMAN CRIBBENS

The Yukon Territory should be made into a separate province of Canada and divided into counties like Ontario, says George Black, former speaker of the House of Commons and federal Conservative member for The Yukon from 1921 to 1949.

Alternatively, he believes The Yukon should join with British Columbia.

"The Yukon has passed the stage when it should be governed from Ottawa," said the veteran parliamentarian, interviewed during a visit to Victoria today.

"It is time the territory handled its own affairs with its own legislative assembly composed of members of the present Yukon Council."

JOHN B.C. "This is particularly important now that Alaska has become a state. But if that is premature, I believe The Yukon should join with British Columbia as early as possible."

Mr. Black, who lived in the Yukon for 41 years before making his home in Vancouver, pointed out that the territory is now producing hundreds of millions of dollars' worth of gold, silver, lead and zinc.

"With this wealth the territory should be fully capable of supporting itself as an independent province."

A former commissioner of the Yukon, Mr. Black recalled that ex-premier Pattullo suggested the Yukon should join B.C. during the 1930s. But the province was then "too heavily in debt that most Yukoners were opposed to it."

Mr. Black, accompanying her husband on his Victoria visit, said she believed many pioneers and sons of pioneers who have left The Yukon would be encouraged to return if living standards were improved, either through provincial autonomy or union with B.C.

Mr. and Mrs. Black would like to settle in Victoria if they can find a suitable home here, "but," said Mr. Black with a smile, "it would have to be within the financial scope of a retired Conservative politician."

WEEKEND SERIES SHOWS MARGARET IN COLOR

Princess Margaret leaves Canada today for her home in England after a month-long tour of the nation, which began July 12 in Victoria.

Beginning next Saturday Weekend Magazine in the Times will carry a series of fine color photographs of scenes taken during her Canadian tour.

Showing the brilliant coloring of the Princess' dresses as well as the events in which she took part, the Weekend series will be a fine complement to the souvenir album of her B.C. visit published by the Times Aug. 1.

Watch Weekend Magazine for the next three Saturdays for these fine color pictures.

Former Bank Manager, Church Warden, Dead

Former manager of the Bank of Toronto and past president of the Canadian Club, Charles W. Pangman, 520 Transit Road, died at his home Sunday. He was 74.

Mr. Pangman was warden of St. Mary's Church, Oak Bay, for a number of years and past captain of the Victoria Golf Club.

Born in Collingwood, Ontario, he joined the bank at an early age and was transferred here as manager in 1922. He was a banker for nearly 45 years.

In addition to being past president of the Kiwanis Club of Victoria he was actively concerned in the club-sponsored TB rehabilitation program through the sale of Christmas seals.

EARNED PRIVILEGE He served for a number of years on the board of directors of the club and was made a privileged member when he retired in 1945.

After retirement he devoted himself to a number of community projects including work with the Protestant Orphanage.

He is survived by two sons, Edward and Douglas, of North Vancouver; a daughter, Ruth, 529 Transit Road; and four grandchildren.

He was pre-deceased by his wife in May.

Funeral services will be conducted by Rev. the Archdeacon A. E. de L. Nunn at St. Mary's Church, Oak Bay, Wednesday at 3:15 p.m. followed by cremation.

'Murdered' U.S. Woman Sought Here

The lawyer for convicted murderer L. Ewing Scott of Los Angeles, now on the B.C. coast in a hunt for the woman his client is supposed to have killed, said in Vancouver Saturday "it is quite possible that she is in the Vancouver-Victoria area."

He added "she likes to travel and she likes English people."

Morris Levine, the lawyer, said he had received a number of calls and letters "suggesting Mrs. Scott has been seen in Canada."

Scott, 61, now is appealing his conviction and life sentence for the murder of his wife. Her body has never been found.

The Scott case first gained prominence in May, 1955, when the wealthy Mrs. Scott disappeared from her large estate.

Scott was under indictment for forgery in connection with withdrawals from his missing wife's bank account when he jumped $25,000 bail and fled to Canada.

He was arrested a year later at the Canadian end of the Windsor-Detroit tunnel.

Unceasing Battle Waged By Scientists, Woodsmen

(This number British Columbians have been shocked by terrific losses in our woods by forest fires. Yet two other forest enemies, working quietly, but with terrible efficiency, dwarf fire damage by the extent of their annual "kill." This is the first of three articles on the insect and disease war against trees—a war we are not sure we are winning.)

By PETE LOUDON

When the woodsmen of British Columbia have completed their cut this year and converted the felled trees to smooth, merchantable lumber, they will have culled out 1,000,000,000 board feet of waste.

This is the lost treasure of the west. This is the spoilage caused by insects and disease.

This is eight times the average annual loss by forest fires. This is $70,000,000 out of the pockets of loggers, operators and governments.

This lumber would build 77,000 five-room homes. And yet this great loss is only the waste in timber felled. The wasted timber still standing in the forests, still spreading itself like cancer through the green heritage of future generations, is beyond realistic estimate.

One disease, decay, is known to have spoiled 25 billion cubic feet of timber still uncut—that's more than 125,000,000,000 board feet.

If the decayed trees could all be collected in one rotten forest, it would cover 7,500,000 acres, almost the area of Vancouver Island.

At the present rate of cutting by B.C. lumbermen, that amount of timber would sustain production for 25 years.

(These estimates result from federal forest research.)

So what are we doing about it? First, the public, you and I and the milkman, can each do his part to keep down forest fires. But it takes experts to fight infestation or a fungus that floats in a breeze.

Citizens Must See Government Acts

About all the man in the street can do is see that he has a government aware to the peril and willing to spend money for microscopes, airplanes, toxic sprays and teams of biologists, pathologists and zoologists to fight an unrelenting war.

Both Canada and British Columbia have recognized this responsibility. Victoria is a headquarters for agencies of both governments co-operating in this battle, with industry.

The federal government maintains a forest biology laboratory here. The investigations and experimental work of this laboratory, result in vital findings.

These are passed along as advice to the provincial forest service and industry, to take effective defence action.

The federal service has 25 research officers and 33 rangers and technicians. There is a sub-laboratory at Vernon. In the fiscal year 1955-56 the total federal expenditure on insect and disease surveys was $373,125 within this province.

Is it enough? Former chief justice, now B.C. forestry adviser Gordon Sloan said in his 1956 forestry report:

"Direct and indirect methods of insect and disease control so far under review, even where effective, are more or less palliative." — give only temporary relief.

He mentions importance of forest sanitation, biological controls and long-term good forest management. Then he adds:

"... the key to the successful application of any of them, and the discovery of new procedures, lies in unremitting research."

Mr. Sloan also notes about three times the amount spent on forest improvement research is being spent by industry on product improvement.

Unless future explorations show science is gaining on the forest killers, industry might better spend its research dollars on forest protection.

Failing that, one day there will be no forest products to improve.

GIANT TANKER HERE TUESDAY FOR DRYDOCK

One of the three largest tank ships in the world will enter Government Graving Dock, Esquimalt, at 7 p.m. Tuesday.

She is the 851-foot giant Ms. George Champion, largest ship to enter the dock since the Queen Elizabeth was here during the Second World War.

George Champion is in for survey and clean-up by Yards Ltd. She will present the trickiest docking problem ever handled here.

When she is in the dock there will be only 7 1/2 inches clearance on either side of her bilge tank.

At another point farther up the hull there will be only 25 inches clearance each side as she crosses the sill of the drydock.

George Champion is owned by Universe Tank Ships, New York, and was built six months ago in Japan.

This will be her first dry-docking since launching.

Britain's minister of supply, Aubrey Jones, MP, will visit Victoria near the end of August en route to England from Australia. While here he will visit the Pacific Naval Research Laboratory in Esquimalt. Mr. Jones' visit in Vancouver as well as Victoria, will be for four days starting on the 26th.

Another Olive, Green That Is, Shows Up Here

An international contest to find someone called Olive Green has produced two ladies of that name in Victoria.

The Spanish Green Olive Institute in Chicago wants a candidate of that name to crown Queen Green Olive and rule the groves as Olive Woman of the year.

Mrs. Olive Green, 2300 Trent, was the first to contact the Times and offer to go. She was followed quickly by Mrs. Olive Green, 1700 Foul Bay Road, who was just as keen.

Both ladies are avid olive eaters eagerly anticipating entering the contest.

Now it is up to the Olive Institute to decide whether one of them makes the trip.

TOPICS OF THE DAY

The plight of a middle-aged couple who were ruined last week when their Esquimalt home burned may be eased tonight by generous Esquimalt residents.

A "household effects shower" is planned for the unlucky pair, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Taylor, at 8 p.m. in the Community Hall.

The couple had "little or no insurance" and residents are urged to come and bring any utensils and household supplies whether broken or used, to assist them.

Five hundred visitors called at Victoria and Island Publicity Bureau Sunday—a record number for Sundays—Commissioner George Warren said today.

The bureau had 1,008 personal calls on Friday, and 1,037 on Saturday.

A grass fire which broke out near the new Sangster School on Metchoin Road at the La-goon Road corner was extinguished Saturday by the Col-wood Volunteer Fire Department.

The school was not endangered.

The 1958 convention of the International Sour-Jough Association may be held in Victoria if the efforts of the British Columbia delegation are rewarded at this year's meeting in Long Beach, California.

The delegates, headed by international president "Tom" Telford, of Vancouver, will put up a strong lobby for the capital city convention site at the meeting August 14 through 17.

Ronald W. Kenny, 1710 Duchess, was fined $250 and his driver's licence was suspended 30 days when he pleaded guilty in Saanich police court today to a charge of impaired driving.

He also pleaded guilty to a charge of driving without a British Columbia licence and was fined $25.

Kenny said he had an Alberta licence and was returning to the Prairies next month.

Free ice cream, suckers, pony rides and boat trips were given to more than 40 children of the Protestant Orphanage Saturday at Beaver Lake.

The treat, sponsored by the Optimist Club of Victoria, is now in its fifth year.

You may soon be paying less for your coffee. Price is expected to go down by two cents a pound this week.

Several big U.S. coffee companies are reported cutting their prices two to four cents a pound, and a two-cent reduction is expected in Victoria as a result.

Reduction will be made in the large grocery stores at first, the smaller ones following.

Robert D. Taylor, 2825 Parkview, a teacher at Central Junior High School is among the eleven graduate students at Western Washington College to complete work for Master's degree in education at the end of the six weeks session.

A Pentecost minister, Rev. J. R. Spittal, has taken on the ministry of Esquimalt Church of the Nazarene, 886 Craigflower Road.

Rev. Spittal was president of the Pentecost Ministerial Association, served the First Church of the Nazarene here as district superintendent for B.C., and has held pastorate in Alberta, Saskatchewan, and Vancouver.

ASK The TIMES

Q.—Is there any reason why my corpse, after registration of death, should not be wrapped in a blanket and taken by my family to the crematorium, a course I would prefer?—W.H.A.

A.—Yes, the crematorium will not accept remains except in a casket. This is for reasons of health. An exposed body of one who had died of a contagious disease might spread that disease before final disposal of the remains. Also in cases of accidental death where the body is severely damaged, it would not be in the best of taste to wrap it in a blanket. The casket is cremated with the corpse, also for health reasons.

Anyone wishing a question answered is invited to send the question along to The Times, addressed to "Ask the Times," Editor, Question and Answers will be published daily.

All questions should deal with matters of fact and be of general interest. The Times does not undertake to solve constitutional or legal problems. Nor will it attempt to put a value on lost notes, stamps or valuables. These should be submitted to dealers.

WHEN TO OPEN GIFTS

Is it proper to open a gift in the presence of the giver? Once in a while I notice that when I hand a gift to someone, it isn't opened until after I leave. "Before my cousin was married, I took her a wedding gift which she put aside until I departed, and I felt a little hurt. Louise Davis Answers: Except for wedding gifts, I see no reason why a person should wait until the giver departs before opening it, unless there are other people around who might be embarrassed that they didn't give something, or unless there might be other awkward circumstances at the time. It is always such fun to open something in the presence of the giver, for it is sharing the joy. If there are others around and the receiver is in doubt, she can ask, "Do you mind if I open this now?" As for wedding gifts, most brides maintain a strict gift-opening routine. They usually like to be alone as much as possible to avoid confusion, disorder or error, especially during the period when other gifts are arriving. Some paste a number on each. The items must be listed with the corresponding number and names of the givers. With such an efficient system, you should make allowances even for a cousin.

Garden Party at Arlow Farm Draws Crowds; $2,600 for Symphony

A hot summer day combined with an attractive garden at "Arlow Farm," country home of Capt. and Mrs. Masey Gooden, created a setting for the annual Symphony Garden Party, last Saturday afternoon.

A sum of approximately $2,600 was realized.

Mrs. Jack Barraclough was general convener with Mrs. Arthur Laundry, the co-convener. Mr. Barraclough, president of the Victoria Symphony Society, was master of ceremonies.

Musical program included organ selections by Fred Pitt and music by Victoria Girls' Pipe Band. Alan Macy handled the public address system.

Mrs. J. N. Edmison convened tea arrangements, assisted by Mrs. H. D. C. Hunter, Mrs. C. S. Bell, Mrs. C. R. Margison, Mrs. L. C. H. Hale, Mrs. James Fraser, Mrs. E. Webster, Mrs. Ian Macdonald and Miss Anne Adamson. Girl Guides from Saanich Division headed by Mrs. J. McKevitt, Mrs. V. Heasley and Mrs. R. Walker, assisted in serving.

Miss Florence Miller, Mrs. Beau Ohrt, Mrs. Dora Manson, and Mrs. Wilfrid Lund.

Fashions for fall were previewed by Eaton's in a spectacular showing in which the mannequins appeared on the terrace and veranda of the gracious home.

Models were Nona Damaske, Jan Joslin, Helen Beirnes, Pat Hummel, Ricki Nicholls, Crystal Burton and Jimmy Crosley.

Men's styles were presented by Hugh Curtis and the commentator was Kay Ellis.

Silhouette in everything from daytime to evening wear was described by Mrs. Ellis as the "regal look" and highlighted by richly textured fabrics, feathers and furs.

Waistlines fitted loosely, shoulders were smoothly natural and the over-all effect of all the fashions was slender.

Colors were in "royal rich hues," the commentator said, "that resembled a sun-drenched stained-glass window."

"It all adds up to a magnificent look," she said, "with more variety than ever for you to choose the most important look of all and that is the "YOU look."
